Railroad Says State Plans Are All Wrong

Finds Rock Where State Counted on None in Plans for Wallkill Valley-Rosendale Road Crossing Elimination.

A hearing was held Tuesday afternoon at the courthouse on the proposed elimination of the crossing at grade over the Wallkill Valley Railroad tracks on the Kingston-Rosendale road at the city limits. At former hearings plans had been submitted by the railroad and by the State Department of Public Works. The State Department had objected to the proposed plans of the railroad, contending that they contained too many short radius curves and were not in keeping with the policy of the state to eliminate curves and make safe travel over the highways. In turn, when the State Department submitted proposed plans, the railroad asked for time to consider and make a study of them. For that purpose the adjournment was taken until Tuesday when the railroad placed on record before the Public Service Commission its objections to the state's plans.

Plans submitted by the state called for an elimination by an overpass constructed some distance in the city from the present crossing at grade. That plan called for the elimination of several curves and straightening the road. The scheme calls for the new highway leaving the present highway this side of the Bower farm and running back of the house and gas station and then east and over the present highway and across the railroad to the high ground on the opposite side of the railroad. At the time the plans were submitted Mr. Jaynes, for the railroad, asked if the Department of Public Works had anticipated any rock excavation on that scheme and the reply of Mr. Burleigh was that it was not anticipated there would be any great amount of rock excavation. The estimate of the department was that the plan as submitted by it would cost $104,000 and provide a much better route than that proposed in the railroad plans.

Having been granted an adjournment to study the plans of the State Department and to formulate its own estimate of the cost the railroad came into the hearing Tuesday prepared to show that the state was all wrong and had estimated its scheme entirely too low.

The railroad's estimate of the cost of the scheme was $152,300 instead of $104,000. This increase in the cost Mr. Jaynes stated was due largely to the fact that the state had failed to study the situation sufficiently to find that there was much rock to be excavated on the state's route. In the state's estimate there was practically no rock considered while the railroad in running out the state's scheme in the field had found considerable rock excavation necessary which it was estimated would cost $42,900.

Photographs were offered showing numerous outcrops of rock along the proposed scheme of the state. Mr. Jaynes said he felt sure a great amount of rock would be encountered two or three feet below the surface and estimated the cost of rock removal at $4.25 a yard.

In submitting figures of the state plan the estimate of the railroad was $42,900 for rock where the state had not figured any rock. The figures of the railroad as to the cost of the elimination by the state's plans were submitted by the railroad and the state asked time to examine and analyze the figures of the railroad and compare them with the state's estimate. Mr. Burleigh asked two weeks for that purpose and will serve on the railroad and the county its findings.

Then Mr. Jaynes, railroad engineer, stated, in fairness to all he wanted to change he estimate of the cost of the elimination by the railroad's scheme. When the railroad had submitted plans and figures on the elimination according to its idea of what should be done he had not known the condition of the rock outcrop. After running out the lines he found there was considerable rock on the line of the railroad's scheme which is near the present crossing and he stated the former estimate of the elimination which had been $112,900 according to the railroad would have to be increased to $119,400 for his scheme, using the same unit prices for that scheme as were used in figuring the cost of the state's scheme. The increase was due to discovery of rock which would cost about $3.25 a yard more to excavate than earth.

The railroad also contended that the elimination by the state's plan would be in the nature of a highway improvement rather than a straight elimination proposition and suggested that others should share in the cost. The state held that it was not a highway improvement but the state admitted that since the present road was but a 14 foot road and the new plan called for a 16 to 20 foot roadway the cost of this additional width would be paid by the state.

Corporation Counsel H. H. Fleming, who with Mayor E. J. Dempsey and City Engineer Codwise represented the city, stated that the city was not inclined to take on any additional expenditures and could not pay any of the cost of an elimination at the crossing. The present roadway within the city is now in good condition and the present road was sufficient for traffic now using it. Any expenditure would be chargeable to the elimination and the city did not feel willing to spend any money on that.

County Attorney Robert G. Groves said any change in the highway at that point was chargeable to the elimination and the county was not willing to pay any share of the cost of such elimination as the county was now spending a large sum to erect bridges and repair highways damaged a year ago by the flood.

The railroad was required to submit additional photographs showing conditions along the center line of the proposed route of the state scheme to indicate whether there were rock outcrops near the surface. The commission also asked that the railroad submit estimates of the amount of rock to be excavated between specific stations on the state route.

An adjournment subject to the call of the commission if necessary was taken.

Coste to Pursue Graf Zeppelin

French Ace Takes Off Tomorrow and Hopes to Overtake Dirigible Before It Reaches Lakehurst.

Le Bourget, France, Aug. 21 (AP).—Dieudonne Coste, French air ace, announced this afternoon he would take off at 5 a. m. tomorrow in a flight around the world in pursuit of the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, which he hoped to overtake and pass before she could reach Lakehurst and New York.

Coste thinks he should reach Honolulu by 9 a. m. Tuesday, August 27. He will continue in a single jump to San Francisco or Los Angeles. He hoped to arrive at Los Angeles before the Graf Zeppelin could refuel and get away for Lakehurst. The Graf is due there on Sunday if all goes well. It will take three days to refuel her and inspect her engines.

Coste expected to catch up with the Graf some time after leaving Hawaii. "By Tuesday I should begin to see the huge tail of the Graf Zeppelin," he told his friends today.

The flight from San Francisco or Los Angeles to New York, Coste expected to be easy and to give him a big advantage over the dirigible. "I did it before in the other direction," he explained.

The last stage of his flight will be from New York to Le Bourget or from Old Orchard, Maine. Coste has not yet chosen which course he will take, but he is inclined to favor that from New York to Paris.

He said that would permit him, if all went well, to duplicate Lindbergh's famous flight in May, 1927. Although the Atlantic has been crossed several times from west to east since then, no one has achieved the exploit of the famous American aviator in landing exactly at the point for which he set out on a flight from the United States to Europe.

Coste will make his flight around the world in any case, he said, but is especially anxious to overtake the Graf Zeppelin because Dr. Hugo Eckener broke Coste's record for the Paris-Toyko distance by nearly two days.

Maurice Bellonte, who accompanied Coste on his attempt to fly from Le Bourget to New York on July 12, will again be his companion as wireless operator and navigator on the flight around the world. The French airmen will fly the celebrated Breguet Sesquiplane "Question Mark" which they used last July. It has a single Hispano-Suiza motor and a cruising speed of 120 miles an hour and a range at average speed of about 50 hours.

SHOT DEAD; WAS FORMER PATIENT AT MIDDLETOWN

Pittsburgh, Aug. 21 (AP).—Frederic C. Schiller, 24, son of William B. Schiller, former president of the National Tube Company, was shot to death last night in his father's country home in Sewickley Heights. County authorities today were investigating the case.

The young man's brother, W. B. Schiller, Jr., said the victim shot himself accidentally. The body was found in the gun room of the home. A shotgun charge had struck young Schiller in the chest. Deputy Coroner W. M. Jackson said an investigation was being made of a report that Schiller had told his brother he intended to end his life.

Young Schiller married Pauline Lynch, nurse in a Middletown, N. Y., hospital three months ago. He had been a patient in the institution for two weeks.

AUTUMN RAINS QUENCH DESTRUCTIVE FIRES.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 21 (AP).—Dying down with the approach of autumn rains, an end to the flames that have devoured large areas of timber in the northwestern states was foreseen today.

A few stubborn fires, notably the Methow Valley-Chelan blaze, continued to resist the efforts of fire fighters in Washington. The Chelan blaze spread to two new spots, forestry officials reported.

Killed Trying to Evade Police.

Belleville, Ont., Aug. 21 (AP).—Seriously injured in the crash of the car in which he and his brother, Ben, were trying to evade a pursuing police car last night, Alvin Archibell died in a hospital early today. The younger man was driving the car and was killed instantly. Constables with warrants were approaching the Archibell home when the men's coupe dashed out the side drive. The escaping car swerved to avoid a hay wagon, shot into a ditch and crashed into a fence.

Little Hope for Swiss Aviators

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—The same silence which has shrouded outcome of other westward trans-Atlantic flight ventures today cloaked the attempt of two Swiss boy aviators, Oscar Kaesar and Kurt Luescher, to reach New York from Lisbon.

Nothing has been heard or seen of the two airmen and their white plane Young Switzerland, since it circled a village on Terceria Island, Azores, at 1 p. m., E. S. T. Monday. There was scant hope that either the plane or the aviators had survived the great adventure.

The Young Switzerland was sighted but once, by the German Steamship Werra, 175 miles west of Lisbon, before it reached the Azores. Neither Halifax nor Cape Race reported them. The entire coast reported cloudy skies and a heavy fog bank. Hope for their safety waned rapidly as the hours passed without news.

There was a chance that the plane had reached the American continent and came down in a desolate out of the way spot, but the chance was considered slim.

Dr. James H. Kimball, meteorologist at the New York weather bureau, said the weather conditions probably presented a serious problem for the experienced Luescher, who was navigating the ship.

The two aviators were the youngest and least experienced ever to attempt the dangerous crossing, which made once by the German plane Bremen has come to be regarded as suicidal by aviators.

Their plane was a French made Farman with a single 230-horsepower motor, a type of proven worth. Luescher confessed on leaving Lisbon his knowledge of the mariner's science was limited but said he had "handled a sextant and knew something of making calculations" and expected he could get them by all right.

WAS JUST TAKING A WALK— LEDGE WAS NEAREST PLACE

Chicago, Aug. 21 (AP).—A woman went for a walk last night on the narrow ledge atop the Lakeside Theatre, 60 feet above the Sheridan road pavement.

She seemed in deep thought, and smoked cigarettes. She would stand on one foot, strike a match on her shoe, and then ramble on along the narrow path while hundreds of persons gathered below holding their breaths. Occasionally she would sway dangerously.

Firemen stretched nets. They raised ladders. The young woman finally was coaxed into permitting herself to be rescued. On the ground, she sauntered through the crowd and walked away, still puffing and seemingly in deep thought. No one even got her name.

The motion picture operator of the theatre shed some light on the case. He said the woman had come to the projection room, which is against rules, and that he had told her to go take a walk. The ledge was the nearest place.

ROAD HOUSES AND LAXITY OF PARENTS CAUSE TROUBLE

Washington, Aug. 21 (AP).—Roadhouses outside city limits and parental failure to keep their youngsters from public dance halls were cited today by the United States Children's Bureau as major difficulties in the "problem presented by the dance hall".

The report was based on a survey of cities in 25 states.

Officials pointed out that there was no attempt to call attention to "so-called dance hall evils," but to discuss how public dance halls may be made a "real recreational opportunity rather than a brighter form of boredom" for adolescents.

The report recommends that states and counties pass regulations for road houses, pronounced by city authorities "the biggest problem in the protection of young people from the dangers of the unregulated commercial hall."

ENDURANCE PLANE PLUNGES INTO BAY

San Francisco, Aug. 21 (AP).—The endurance monoplane San Franciscan lay at the bottom of San Francisco Bay today and its pilot, Donald Templeman, former army flier, was recovering from the effects of the plunge which ended his undertaking last night.

Apparently fatigued, Templeman misjudged his distance from the ground as he was circling Mills Field in the 36th hour of his flight. The craft struck an electric transmission line and fell into the bay, a few feet from the shore. Templeman swam out, uninjured.

Veteran Telegraph Operator Dead.

Buffalo, Aug. 21 (AP).—Scott A. Farley, veteran telegraph operator, who retired several years ago after serving nearly 25 years with The Associated Press, died at his home here last night. Mr. Farley, who was born in Springwater, N. Y., in 1860, began telegraphy in the railroad field, and had completed 51 years at the key on retirement.

30 Navy Planes for Air Races.

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 21 (AP).—Twenty navy planes, en route from the Pacific coast to Cleveland for the national air races, took off for Kansas City this morning after spending the night here. The squadron included 18 pursuit planes and two giant amphibians.

Zeppelin Ready For 5400-Mile Pacific Trip

Tokyo, August 21 (AP).—Preparations were all but complete late today for the take-off of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin, at 4 a. m. tomorrow (2 p. m. E. S. T.) today, for its trans-Pacific flight to Los Angeles.

Refueling was completed at 2 p. m. today and finishing touches to slight repairs on the balloonettes were being made. But, generally speaking, the airship was in readiness for its round-the-world lap, a trip expected to traverse 5,400 miles and to occupy about 100 hours.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, the ship's master, who treats the take-off as no more eventful than the departure of a ship from New York harbor, has asked the passengers to be ready to go aboard at 2 a. m., a full two hours prior to the scheduled departure.

Dr. Eckener said today he expected to follow the northern great circle route to Seattle, possibly along the line of the Aleutian Islands, and to follow the American coast southward to Los Angeles, his goal.

Japanese weather surveys of the western Pacific area made by the Meteorological Service particularly for Dr. Eckener, showed not a single disturbance anywhere. There was every prospect of an easy trip across the Pacific, which will be the second ocean crossed by the dirigible.

Meanwhile Dr. Eckener and his crew continued their round of entertainments at the hands of Tokyo's great, near great and socially prominent. The officers have been so showered with gifts they will have to ship them home in crates by sea, there being no room aboard the Graf itself.

Possibly the greatest problem attendant upon the interim of waiting here had been refueling, which had continued almost since the hour the dirigible was brought into the hangar. It was packed with 950,000 cubic feet of a new fuel, plus a load of another older kind.

The new fuel is a mixture of pyrofax, combined with hydrogen in the proportion of 65 to 235. It replaced the Blau gas used in Germany but which was not obtainable here. It will be sufficient for flying four motors 120 hours, against the 100 Dr. Eckener thinks likely.

The Japanese government has completed a contract with the company for it to carry mail to the United States and Friedrichshafen.

LICENSES REVOKED OR SUSPENDED RECENTLY.

Four local men had their licenses revoked or suspended by Charles A. Harnett, commissioner of motor vehicles, in the three weeks ended August 12.

The revocation was: Charles Ychucke, Saugerties, charged with driving a car while intoxicated.

The suspensions were: Leonard E. Buell, Prattsville, and Nathan Feldman, 110 Wall street, Kingston, both charged with unlawful use of dealers' plates; Waldo E. Doughty, Staatsburg, charged with improper use of plates.

There were 458 certificates of automobile registration and licenses to drive revoked or suspended. In New York city and vicinity there were 62 revocations and 92 suspensions, and in other parts of the state 135 revocations and 169 suspensions. In the counties of the Albany district there were 28 revocations and 80 suspensions.

RUMANIAN BANDIT GANG IS POLITE TO VICTIMS

Kolozsvar, Transylvania, (AP).—After a gang of highwaymen had robbed a group of wealthy men near here, the masked captain bowed politely and made this speech:

"Excuse me for having robbed you. I used to be a government official but was unable to live on 3,000 lei a month (about $18). Clandestine stealing was repugnant to me, consequently I decided to practice open robbery.

"I am very much indebted to you that you did not resist and that I was not compelled to kill you. I leave you sufficient money to buy your tickets home, and I beg you to give these 100-lei notes to the next policeman you meet, because I think he won't be willing to risk his life in pursuing me for his miserable pay of eight lei (about five cents) a day."

"Cribbed" Answers from Nails.

Ventura, Cal., Aug. 21 (AP).—Applicants for automobile drivers' licenses in Ventura henceforth must wash their hands before setting down their answers to questions on California's new examination forms. Captain Kenneth Murphy of the state traffic patrol ordered soap and water when he discovered applicants who could not read English had answered every question correctly. They had code answers to the questions written on their finger nails.

Will Be Tried For Killing Prince

Ita, Kyushu, Japan, Aug. 21 (AP).—Chang Tsung-Chang, former Shantung war lord, will be tried by a Japanese court for the killing of Prince Hsien Kai, cousin of the former boy emperor of China, at Beppu, August 2. Chang shot Prince Kai from the upstairs window of a hotel while the young Chinese was walking in the garden. Chang's version of the affair was that the gun went off accidentally.

Sharp Battle In Manchuria

Chinese Capture Guns and Ammunition—Russia Said to Have Three Army Corps Ready.

Tokyo, Aug. 21 (AP).—Manchuli correspondents of Nichi Nichi and Asahi Shimbun today reported a sharp battle yesterday just east of Manchuli between Soviet invaders and Chinese troops.

The two newspapers said Soviet armored trains appeared within 500 yards of the Manchurian frontier town. Four hundred infantrymen jumped from the trains and deployed, opening fire on the Chinese under cover of their own artillery.

The Chinese replied with Howitzers and the Russians eventually retired after two hours' fighting in which the Chinese suffered thirty casualties. A number of Russian guns and some ammunition was captured.

(Manchuli is about ten miles from the Sino-Russian frontier in Manchuria).

Shanghai, Aug. 21 (AP).—A message from Harbin said that martial law had been declared throughout the Chinese eastern railway zone as a consequence of increasing gravity of the situation in Manchuria and recurrence of sabotage and train wrecking.

Mukden, Manchuria, Aug. 21 (AP).—Chinese military dispatches from Harbin today stated a Russian gunboat on the Shanghai river near Fuchinghsein fired upon a Chinese postal barge and captured five postal employes and the boat's mail.

Minor engagements were reported today from Mulinsien and Hisingkai in the neighborhood of Lake Hanka, while it was said severe fighting took place near Chalanor on August 18 and August 19.

Railway traffic at the eastern end of the Chinese Eastern Railway has been crippled by attempts to blow up trains.

London, Aug. 21 (AP).—A dispatch to the London Daily Mail today from Dairen, Liatung Peninsula, China, said that while the Soviet and Chinese governments had bandied accusations and repudiations of Manchurian frontier raids the Soviet military administration had been quietly organizing its far-eastern army. Mobilization, the dispatch said, was now complete. Three army corps are ready.

Supreme command has been given to General Blucher, who under the designation of General Gallen was loaned to the Chinese Nationalist government to advise it in training its army.

The correspondent of the mail said former Czarist officers with the army were doubtful of the morale of Russian troops if employed outside of Russia.

It was said also that former Chinese officials at Dairen often visited in Mukden, capital of Manchuria, and were inclined to believe Feng Yu-Hsiang might be eliminated from the Chinese picture and a new North China party formed under Yen Hsi-Shan, minister of interior, with the aim of independence from the south.

PREDICTS SQUABBLE OVER RAIN CLOUDS

Ghazi Pasha, Turkey (AP).—Some hundreds of years from now, predicts Prime Minister Ismet Pasha, nations will be able to control rainfall by means of powerful aeronautic machery.

The observation arose from an informal garden party discussion of the drought which for the fourth year is menacing the unirrigated Anatolian plateau. President Kemal was entertaining in celebration of the fourth anniversary of his model farm near Angora.

Harnessing the elements, the minister says, will lead to international squabbles such as one country accusing another of enticing a rain cloud across the border and the cabinet of every government will have to include a weather minister to handle such meteorological questions diplomatically.

WILL BE NAILED BY EARS AND BLOWN FROM CANNON.

Peshawar, British India, Aug. 21 (AP).—Habibullah Khan, Afghanistan's water boy king, has given orders that anyone mentioning the name of Nadir Khan, who is contesting him for his throne, shall be nailed publicly to a wall by the ears and afterwards blown from a cannon. Rebel tribesmen fighting against Habibullah recently captured a general and staff and boiled them in oil.

Nadir Khan was said to have raised an army of 15,000 men with which he was besieging Gardez, from where Habibullah's men are deserting daily.

Timber Gas Kills Three.

Ulster County Fair Opens Auspiciously

Perfect Weather and a Wealth of Attractions Draw a Good First Day Crowd to Ellenville for the Big Annual Event — Four Days of Good Racing Promised — California Frank a Big Drawing Card.

If there be anything of omen in perfect weather for its opening day the forty-first annual fair of the Ulster County Agricultural Society, which opened at Ellenville Tuesday, is scheduled to be an overwhelming success.

Cool and clear, Tuesday was all that could be desired by the most critical and as a result many people made their way to the fair grounds at Ellenville, despite the fact that opening day is generally considered as "getting ready" day and little is expected in the matter of attendance.

The fair is to continue all this week, including Saturday, and will also be open nights. Fireworks, which proved a great attraction last year, will be a feature of the fair each evening, beginning with Wednesday evening.

The Clayton Band will furnish music each afternoon and evening the last four days and on Thursday evening a special feature will be the exhibition to be given by the American Legion Drum Corps of Kingston. They carry 44 men and their playing and drilling will be well worth hearing and seeing.

An outstanding feature of the fair this year is the exhibition by California Frank's Rodeo. They will be on twice daily, at 2:30 afternoons and 8 o'clock evenings. Patrons of the fair are well acquainted with California Frank as he was at the fair six years ago, proving one of the most popular special features ever secured. His wonderful riders proved Tuesday that they had lost none of their cunning and Mrs. Frank's eye is as keen as ever as she unerringly shatters with her rifle glass balls thrown into the air.

Racing Secretary McDowell assures us that there are a fine lot of horses entered for the four days' racing to begin Wednesday afternoon, when the 2:30 pace and 2:30 trot will be run. Thursday there will be a 2:18 trot, also a 2:18 pace; Friday, the 23d, the free-for-all and the 2:18 trot or pace will be the racing features, while Saturday will close the week with a 2:24 class trot and a 2:24 pace, all the races being run under the three heat plan for purses of $400. There will also be a running race each afternoon.

The outstanding impression on entering the fair grounds this year is one of bigness. It looks like a real tented city. Not only are there more tents than usual, but they seem to be larger and generally have an appearance of newness.

The restaurant building and tent are just at the entrance to the grounds and dinner can be had at from 50 to 75 cents, depending on whether you crave beef or chicken. The rest of the space along the drive and west of the main building is taken up with entertainment features—and they include every kind of fakir known to the fair goer. They have one common attribute, an avid desire to separate the visitor from as much coin of the realm as possible. Whether all are alike as conscientious in doing so is a question on which there seems to be a difference of opinion.

It would take an encyclopedia to list all the wonderful features offered. There are the "birds with a human mind"; the monkey autodrome—"thrills, chills and spills"; living models from Greenwich Village—at 10c a peek; Loretta, who has one head, but is otherwise wonderfully and fearfully constructed; the water turtle captured at Coney Island, with its shell painted (artifically) in all the hues of the rainbow; a big tent that houses among other things the Burning of She, the Living Head, the Girl with 1,000 Eyes, etc.

Then there is "Queen Mollie," who was "born with a double veil," and elucidates the mysteries of spiritualism, palmistry and like occult sciences. Queen Mollie tells us this is her 17th year here and that "everybody knows her." She is a pleasant little lady to know, at that, and evidently combines worldly wisdom with her spiritual attainments, for we understand she is the proprietress of several concessions on the grounds—all of which she declares are run "on the square," intimating that that is more than can be said for some people. Madame Lambert, "famous American Palmist—seek thy fate before too late," is her only competitor and seeing that Queen Mollie is her daughter-in-law the competition probably isn't serious.

What was in former days the Midway, is this year taken by Buck's Empire Shows and concessions. There is a Merry-go-round, Ferris Wheel, Chair Plane and numerous side shows. Both sections are well supplied with the fellows who offer you a chance to roll a ball, shoot with a very dubious gun or risk your money on the turn of a wheel.

A number of dealers have erected tents adjoining the main building for

Can't Get Ship Passage Home

Fire on Steamship Paris Causes Unprecedented Tourists Traffic Jam and Large Prices Are Offered for Transportation.

Paris, Aug. 21 (AP).—Monday night's fire aboard the steamship Paris putting her out of commission for several weeks has caused a tourist traffic jam of almost unprecedented proportions in the French capital.

Some of those who had booked passage on the Paris succeeded in getting places aboard the Olympic and Republic sailing today, the President Harding on Friday and the Mauretania and France on Saturday. Most of these ships, however, already had been booked to virtual capacity.

All steamship offices have been jammed since yesterday morning by Americans pleading for a bunk or any kind of accommodation home. Some of those who had engaged first class passage on the Paris were satisfied to be squeezed into the tourist class on other ships.

One American business man offered to pay for the trip homeward of anyone who would sell him a ticket on any ship arriving in New York prior to September 2.

The United States lines announced that it was useless for anyone to try to get passage on the Leviathan's next sailing as the waiting list numbered 200.

BLAMES OLD CAR, SMOOTH TIRES AND WET PAVEMENT.

Eugene Castor of 7 Washington avenue, who received a suspended sentence in city court Monday on charges of driving to the left of the traffic standard at North Front street and Washington avenue without his operator's license, got a like sentence today when he faced Judge Shufeldt on a charge of driving with defective brakes.

Officer Fallon arrested Castor on the three charges early Monday morning. He pleaded guilty to driving without his operator's license and passing the standard, but disagreed with the officer's statement that his brakes were defective.

After arresting Castor Officer Fallon drove his car down Broadway and tried to stop it several times. He testified that the brakes did not respond properly. Castor blamed the action of the brakes to the age of his car, the smoothness of his tires and wet pavement. He claimed he could make the car stop as readily as any ordinary one, minus four-wheel brakes, and said he had not had the brakes adjusted since his arrest.

Steamer on Fire, Deserted.

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Radio Marine Corporation today received a wireless message from the freighter Yalza stating she had seen the steamer Quimistan on fire and deserted about 1,100 miles east of Norfolk, Va. There was no sign of the crew. The Quimistan was well down in the water, the message said, and was a menace to navigation. The ship was formerly a Honduran vessel, but recently was sold to German interests to be scrapped. It was bound for Genoa, Italy, from Norfolk.

Two Drowned While Canoeing.

York, Pa., Aug. 21 (AP).—While canoeing on the big Conewango Creek at Dyck's dam early today, Earl Hershey, 24, and Viola March, 20, of Spring Grove, near here, were drowned when their craft capsized. Two others, Theresa Welsh and E. A. Hawkins, were rescued. They were members of a camping party. Hershey leaves a widow and three children.

Portland-Cleveland Air Derby.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 21 (AP).—Entries in the Portland to Cleveland air derby, which will start here Friday, stood at ten today. W. H. Emery, Bradford, Pa., one entry, has competed in national air derbies for the last two years.

Keeping Up Spirits on Zeppelin.

Tokyo, Aug. 21 (AP).—Before starting her Pacific flight the Graf Zeppelin's stores were enlarged in Japan by 50 quarts of champagne and a like quantity of wines, besides a plentiful supply of whiskey and liquors. No beer was stocked here.

Killed by Exploding Gasoline.

Dead Letters

Despite the legend on the General Post Office building in New York city, "Neither snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds," which was said by Herodotus many centuries ago, the "couriers" suffer from one insurmountable difficulty — mis-directed mail. More than 350,000 pieces of badly addressed mail flow daily into the New York post office, and about 80,000 letters bear as the address only the words "New York." A veritable army of separators is forced to correct the mistakes of careless letter addressers, despite the fact that most of the mail is entirely worthless advertising matter.

PREPARING FOR PASSION DRAMA

Oberammergau Getting Ready for Religious Play to Be Given Next Year.

Berlin.—Word has gone out to all male inhabitants of Oberammergau to let their hair and beards grow. Although another year must elapse before the famous Passion Play is again performed in this little Bavarian village, visitors already see signs of activity and bustling preparations for the dramatic event.

Interest centers chiefly on the choice of players for the main roles, Christ and Mary. Anton Lang, the master potter who has played Christ in the last three presentations of the Passion Play, has passed the age limit and is not able to undertake the exacting task a fourth time.

Who will be chosen to succeed him?

The choice for this important part has now narrowed down to two candidates: Alois Lang, a distant cousin of the famed Anton, and Meichoir Breitsamter, a worker in a local sawmill. Alois Lang is a school teacher. Both men are splendid physical types, tall, erect, with heavy, bushy beards and trailing hair. Breitsamter played the part of John the Baptist in the last Passion Play production in 1922.

Two Seek Mary Role.

Interest is equally keen in the selection of the young woman who is to assume the role of Mary. The choice for this part appears to lie between Ria Lang, daughter of Anton Lang, and Hansi Preisinger, daughter of the village postmaster. Both are said to be excellently qualified for the role in character and appearance alike. Each has the Madonna expression, pale, thin face with an almost ethereal countenance; either might have stepped out of the frame of a Raphael painting.

They are equally talented as actresses and each has long hair, for bobbed heads are taboo in the Passion Play. Ria and Hansi were both educated at the Institute of Dominican sisters at Polling and both, in accordance with a custom widely adopted by Oberammergau maidens, have enjoyed a stay in England as "house daughters" in private families. A knowledge of the English language is considered a great asset in Oberammergau, in view of the throngs of English and American visitors to this historic spot. Ria and Hansi now live at home and devote themselves to assisting their mothers in the household.

Would Become Actress.

But that is not their ultimate ambition. Ria Lang intends to stay at home like a true Bavarian village girl. If she is chosen as Mary, she will first become a member of the chorus of the Passion Play.

"I have no worldly ambitions in connection with the play," she said recently. "To me, it is not a theater, but service of God and a fulfillment of the vow made by our forefathers in the days of the pestilence in 1633."

Hansi Preisinger has a different view of the affair. She is determined to become an actress. She will not be content to assume any lesser part in the play, not even as Mary's alternate. Her real intention, she shyly confessed, is to be married.

Her prospective bridegroom is a young engineer at the big power plant on the Walchensee. If his fiancee should be chosen as Mary, custom would impose one year of celibacy on him. He has declared himself wholeheartedly in sympathy with Hansi's desire to become an actress.

Citizens Select Cast.

The inhabitants of Oberammergau themselves select most of the actors and actresses for the chief parts of the play. The names of those chosen are then submitted to a special committee, headed by the mayor, and this body makes the final decision. The cast will not be announced until September, but the names of eligible young folk are being discussed wherever the villagers foregather.

This is not unnatural, considering that the villagers grew up from their earliest childhood in the tradition of the Passion Play. As children, they strew flowers in the Saviour's path during the play. Ten years later they joined the crowd that cries, "Hosanna!" Four else they were allowed to play the parts of guardian angels, dressed in sweeping white robes. Those who have stage ambitions then entered the Krotzen school, which gives plays in its own theater, near the famous Passion Play theater.

Preparations Progressing.

Preparations for the performance in 1930 are proceeding rapidly. All the village streets have been paved with asphalt and the country roads leading to Oberammergau have been rebuilt in anticipation of the tens of thousands of motorists who are expected to visit the Passion Play. A site has been selected for the erection of an autodrome, so that hurried tourists can come by airplane. The Passion Play theater, too, is being renovated.

Fishing Record Falls

St. Petersburg, Fla.—All previous records in mackerel fishing from the million-dollar recreation pier have been broken, according to George Roberts, pier master, who says 4,200 fishermen took more than 60,000 mackerel from the sea in six days. The average catch hourly for fishermen was found to be 13, several catching as many as 300.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT THE OLD GOLD CONCEALED NAME CIGARETTE TEST

Ask us another if we haven't answered here every question ever asked about it

QUESTION: Does OLD GOLD publish the score of every public test taken?

ANSWER: Yes . . . win, lose or draw!

QUESTION: Is OLD GOLD always the same number?

ANSWER: No. In the actual tests there are no numbers on the cigarette masks. The smoker, himself, tears off the paper masks and finds out for himself which cigarette he has chosen as best.

QUESTION: Is the Concealed Name Test a "guessing contest" . . . does the smoker attempt to guess brand names?

ANSWER: Decidedly not! The smoker states only which cigarette tastes best to him, and does not try to guess the name.

QUESTION: Who conducts these tests?

ANSWER: Never the makers of OLD GOLDS, or their agents. The tests are conducted by certified public accountants, or officials of the organization or institution under whose auspices the tests are given.

QUESTION: Are all competing brands equally fresh and in precisely the same condition?

ANSWER: All four brands are purchased before each test at the same time in the same store out of retail stock, just as the public buys them . . . and the clerk who sells them certifies the purchase.

QUESTION: Does the official conducting the test know which cigarette is which while the smoker is making the test?

ANSWER: No! The cigarettes are arranged in sets of four . . . one each of the four leading brands. Then they are masked . . . their names completely concealed. When the official hands out these masked cigarettes it is impossible for him, or anyone, to know one from another.

. . . .

NOTE: Why not make this test yourself in your own home? We'll be happy to send you a set of the brand name masks and complete instructions . . . Write to P. Lorillard Co., 119 West 40th Street, New York City.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Aug. 21—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets)—The short supply of New York cucumbers available on the wholesale market today found a prompt sale in a slightly firmer market. The very best cucumbers and dill's commanded as high as $3 a bushel basket.

Increased supplies and a poorer demand resulted in lower prices for state big Boston lettuce. Crates of two dozen heads peddled out from 35 cents to $1, very rarely higher. Romaine ranged from 25 to 75 cents, occasionally 85-90 cents on strictly fancy large.

String bean offerings from upstate continued to vary greatly in quality and sales ranged accordingly. Sales on bushel baskets of wax beans were made at 25 cents to $2.; on red cranberry at $2-$3 and on green varieties at 50 cents to $2.50.

Prices on state white cabbage were slightly lower again. The market was dull and trading was exceedingly slow. Jobbing sales on sacks of about 90 pounds were made at $2.50-$2.75. Virginia cabbage in crates of approximately 100 pounds sold at $2.75-$3.50.

Little activity prevailed for green peas. Arrivals were moderate. Upstate consignments in bushel baskets realized 75 cents to $1.75. Bushel bags brought 75 cents to $1.50.

The celery market was inactive. Price changes were small and unimportant. Most of the business on stock in the rough was transacted at $2-$2.25 per two-thirds crate.

Trucked in supplies of red and yellow onions from Orange county, New York, were moderate. The demand was generally light, but the market was about steady. Hundred-pound sacks of yellow and red onions jobbed out at $2-$2.25; occasionally as high as $2.50.

The demand for tomatoes was less active and values averaged a trifle lower. Supplies were moderate.

INDIANS CLAIM SENECA FALLS AND WATERLOO

Buffalo, Aug. 21 (AP).—The villages of Seneca Falls and Waterloo, in Seneca county, N. Y., are claimed by the Indians. Furthermore, it became known here today that members of the Cayuga tribe, living around Hagersville, Ont., across the border, were planning to press their claim before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt in about two weeks.

Supporting the Cayugas' contention by a treaty entered into in 1795 between the Indians and the state of New York, ceding all territory in the boundaries of the villages in question to the tribe, George Nash, tribal secretary, conferred yesterday with Chief Clinton Rickard, of the Tuscarora reservation at Sanborn, N. Y. Chief Rickard will act as spokesman at Albany.

By the treaty, of which the chief has photostatic copies from the Royal Canadian archives, the Cayugas were granted tenure of the land in perpetuity, and were to receive an annuity of $1,800 from the time of signing.

Since the War of 1812, it is claimed, no annuities have been forthcoming.

Iseman of the committee. Tickets should be purchased at the Legion building on West O'Reilly street, at Torino's Inn, the Flower Shop, Murphy's news stand, or from any member of the American Legion.

Transportation will be furnished to all those who have no cars. Cars will leave the American Legion Memorial Building Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. There will be plenty of cars for all.

This bake and outing is not for members of the American Legion alone. Everybody is welcome. Chairman Iseman says to bring the wife and children. A great many reservations have already been made for ladies.

Ulster County Fair Opens

Visitors to the fair should not miss the exhibition of pheasants by the State Conservation Department. They are in a wire covered enclosure near the poultry house and are a beautiful sight.

In this same section is the exhibit of flowers, which formerly occupied a space in the main building. Mrs. Ivie Elting is in charge. The Shawangunk Garden Club members are making a big exhibit this year and all lovers of flowers will surely be repaid by a visit to this tent.

The fruit and vegtable tent is in charge of A. B. Tice of Spring Glen. Mr. Tice says that the display, while not large, is of good quality. The exhibit of commercial apples and pears is attractive.

The poultry exhibit is in charge of H. J. Levine and Wm. L. Young and the fact is emphasized that this year in poultry—as also in cattle, sheep and swine—place has been given only to entries by residents of Ulster, Sullivan and Orange counties. The "ringers" have been eliminated, which as we view it is a step in the right direction. Despite the fact that two large lots of birds could not be shown as they had just been vaccinated, there is a good display of poultry, practically all pens being filled. There are some good birds shown, too, among them flocks from Leghorns with records of 301 to 325 eggs.

The display of swine in small, but there is a good display of sheep.

The fine new cattlebarns are well filled and some nice stock is shown. Prominent among the herds are the fine Jerseys from the Tama Dairy Farms, in charge of Elmer LaForge, who raised them himself, the accredited herd of Holstein-Friesians from Bruyn's Shawangunk Valley Stock Farm at Wallkill, and the herd of Ayrshires entered by Frank Brooks of Sundown.

In The Main Building.

As usual the visitor will find many things to interest in a visit to the main building.

The center spaces, near the entrance, are occupied this year by the Marshall-Jansen Co., who show a model of the new Ford town car, and by the Vanderlyn Vulcanizing Co., who show new models of the Oakland and Pontiac lines.

Mrs. C. C. Low was busy Tuesday arranging the canned goods in neat rows, placing the butter, eggs and the like, embraced in the culinary department. The real tempting part of this exhibit—cakes that make you forget there ever was such a thing as indigestion, fluffy rolls, the lightest of bread and pies that make your mouth water—was not yet at hand. Mrs. Low said that the "bakery" comes in on Wednesday and the quantity will depend upon just how good luck the clever housewives of the three counties had with this particular batch of baking. We understand that there are more entries here than last year.

Adjoining are the booths that house the display of fancy and domestic work, the largest department in the main building, in charge of Mrs. Otis Lapp and Mrs. Roy W. Ball. This display is not as large as in some years, but there are many fine specimens of clever handiwork shown. But one patch-work quilt is shown, which was a great disappointment to the writer—patch-work quilts being about the only item in this particular department that really appealed to him. The entire Art Department display, to wit, one collection of raffia work, was also moved over to the fancy and domestic booth. Whether art is in serious decline in Ulster county, or whether Woodstock competition has been too strong, we can't say, but the facts are as stated above.

William H. Deyo & Co., have a booth advertising their various lines of building material.

The Ellenville W. C. T. U., with the spirit and energy for which those ladies have been famed, has a booth in charge of their president, Mrs. I. S. Cantine. Mrs. Cantine was busy "fixing up" the booth, but said that they would have an exhibit of posters setting forth principles of the organization—"The uplifting of humanity in general"—and would have a supply of literature for distribution. Last year they gave out the life of Herbert Hoover and one prominent fair official was approached by a gentleman of strong Democratic proclivities, who protested at this "partisan" action. He was told that the next booth happened to be vacant and he had the privilege of renting it and handing out all the political literature he wished.

A very interesting and helpful exhibit is that of the New York State Conservation Department, in charge of J. H. O'Dell of the Bureau of Reforestation. Posters show stages of tree growth, from nursery to fifteen years of age, when it is almost marketable timber. The right and wrong way to plant trees is graphically shown. There are seven different varieties of young trees shown growing and informative literature on the white pine blister and gypsy moth is given out. A large section from a white pine tree, 37 inches across at the narrowest point, attracts much attention. 1,000 pine trees are offered to the person guessing the age of the tree from which this was cut. The tree was cut at Cambridge, N. Y., gave five 12-foot body logs and saved 1,276 feet of merchantable lumber.

There is a fine display of work done by the public school children. Miss Nellie M. Newkirk and Miss Coral Krom were arranging the many entries for this booth. Superintendent of Schools J. Hartley Tanner is in charge.

Adjoining the schol booth is the office of E. C. Hocmer, secretary and general manager of the fair. Secretary Hocmer is kept busy most of the time pouring oil on troubled waters, or else telling some too grasping concessionaire just where to "get off", but his capable assistant, Miss Jennie McDowell, is there to handle affairs in his absence.

This must be a jewelry year—at least jewelry seems to be the prevailing line of business in the main building. Mrs. E. L. Herzog of Troy shows rings and beads; Fred P. Venditto of Providence, R. I., has a general line of jewelry and does engraving; H. A. Burtwell, also from Providence, is a diamond setter and engraver, and A. Palmeri of Brooklyn shows beads, rings and the like.

Mr. and Mrs. Nobe Connelly, from Chicago, are demonstrating a liquid that they say will transfer designs from wall paper on to any material and show samples of their work in pillows, scarfs and other articles.

The Izaak Walton League, of which Dan Vanderlyn heads the newly-formed Ellenville Chapter, has a booth. The walls are of hemlock. There is a bunk in one corner and in another a fire log, with an axe struck into one end and some cut wood alongside. One took particular notice that the wood was of very small diameter, indicating that the brawny woodsman who prepared it was taking pains to conserve his energy.

An exhibit that should interest egg men was that of the New York State Department of Farms and Markets. It aims to explain the new state law in regard to grading eggs and gives information about candling eggs. It is in charge of C. D. Hadley of the department.

Manager Albert Kurdt of the Ulster County Farm Bureau is in charge of an exhibit devoted mainly to milk production. Literature telling how to increase production is distributed and information given out.

Two attractive displays were those of New Paltz Huguenot Grange and Plattekill Grange. The Huguenot Grange display was arranged early Tuesday and showed about everything in the line of vegetables, fruits, flowers, canned goods, milk, butter, eggs and even some butternuts. It was arranged by a committee composed of I. C. Barnes, A. E. Jansen, J. C. Burns, Mrs. Charles Johnson, Mrs. Moses Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. Fred DuBois and Henry DuBois, master of the Grange.

Mrs. Seth Lippincott, Mrs. Harold Teany, Mrs. Walter Brack, Mr. and Mrs. Leander Minard, Mrs. Charles Jenkins and Mr. Lippincott were arranging a similar display for Plattekill Grange Tuesday forenoon.

M. Steinhoff, the Ellenville plumber, has an exhibit of gas stoves and Russell Walker shows Maytag Washers.

CHARLIE SMITH OUTPOINTS "K. O. BILL" DUGAN.

The main go in the Woodcliff Park fistic exhibition Tuesday night in Poughkeepsie, Charlie Smith, the big English heavyweight, outpointed the much talked about Atlanta, Georgia, scrapper, "K. O. Bill" Dugan, after ten rounds. Smith's method of combat was very effective when Dugan rushed him. The Englishman's left landed on Dugan's head with terrific force but the latter managed to weather the storm of blows and survive the ten rounds.

POPULATION.

Various highbrow persons continue to worry about the question of population, rather unnecessarily, it seems. The ordinary citizen wants more people for his community so he can brag about its size or make more money doing business with them. But his interest ends there. Scientists look far ahead. But they contradict each other in their worries.

One group, following the philosophy of Malthus, argue that we shall go on multiplying until we overpopulate the land and die of starvation. Another group, represented just now by Prof. Corrado Gini of the University of Rome, say that is nonsense—the human race adjusts its numbers naturally to living conditions.

Take a young, energetic, growing family like our own nation. Are we going to keep on until there are a billion of us swarming over this continent looking for enough to eat and elbowing each other out of the way? Not so, according to Gini. He gives this general description of the way such a situation works out.

"The members of the upper classes, to preserve for their children the economic and social advantages of the family, reach the point where they limit the number of children, so as not to divide too much the advantages gained." The more vigorous middle and lower classes tend to crowd into the upper classes, but as time goes on they themselves follow the same rule, delaying marriage or limiting the number of children in order to make their rise possible. So population slows up all along the line. Nature, too, takes a hand. Nations, like individuals, have their periods of vigorous youth, static middle age and failing old age.

This sounds reasonable until you consider the teeming populations of China and India. We do not want to grow like them. Why haven't they checked themselves? America has one great advantage that Asia lacks—general intelligence, which may be trusted to solve its population problem along with others. Anyway, how many Americans there are going to be 1,000 years from now is nothing to worry about in hot weather.

CITRUS FARM RELIEF.

The Federal Farm Board's first official relief loan will be made to meet the marketing situation in Florida, to enable citrus fruit growers to install certain packing plant equipment which is essential to meet government regulations for controlling the fruit fly. It is the only way to get this year's crop on the market.

The board expects the organizations engaged in marketing the citrus fruit to develop unity of action. It suggests that "an agreement among these various groups looking toward more economical sales operations, greater efficiency and economy in packing house operations, and a more complete control of the citrus fruits in Florida to prevent gluts and surpluses on American markets, is desirable from the standpoint of both the producer and the consumer." Also, before any further loans are made, the board suggests that the growers themselves should unite on a program for the benefit of the industry.

CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS.

A hospital superintendent observes that two-thirds of the emergency calls come between 1 p. m. and midnight. He draws an interesting conclusion.

The afternoon and evening happen to be busier than the morning, as far as traffic and general activity are concerned, he admits. But he finds a more potent cause of accidents—namely, fatigue. In the first part of the day people are fresh, vigorous and alert, and consequently able to take care of themselves. In the latter part they grow tired, and lose their mental and physical keenness. Their judgment is not so good, their minds do not work so nimbly, their bodies do not respond so readily.

The same facts may be observed in any situation, whether on the street, in the factory or at home. It is mostly when people are tired that they hurt themselves and others. If weariness could be prevented, or recognized and allowed for, most of our mishaps would be avoided.

Trunk line railroads are said to be acquiring transcontinental bus lines now, just as they have been acquiring in recent years, short-line railroads. They have to protect their own interests, and try to meet the bus competition by absorbing it. Such action may be carried too far for the general good. It is probably a good thing for the railroads to operate local bus lines as feeders in many places for their regular service. This may benefit the public as well as the railroads. But it is of doubtful utility for them to absorb long-haul bus lines if they are to continue those lines. There is danger of bus transportation being overdone. It is now becoming a serious evil on many highways, unduly crowding other traffic, while performing no useful service that could not be provided by trolley or steam lines. If buses are to be enlarged and multiplied indefinitely, and continue prolonging their routes, there may be new trunk highways needed for them.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

DEATH FROM A HANGNAIL.

A prominent business man died the other day from blood poisoning.

The details were "from an infection of a hangnail on his thumb acute blood poisoning developed, and in one week he was dead".

Now why can a simple little condition like a hangnail cause blood poisoning and death?

Simply because Nature's great protector—the skin—was broken.

The skin looks to be such an ordinary thing, just a sort of covering for the body, like the covering you put over an umbrella which hides the ridges and folds.

You perhaps think of the skin in the same way and yet it is as delicately organized as any organ in the body.

It regulates the body heat, keeps out water, carries a supply of water in it for emergencies, and prevents poisons from entering the body.

It has a number of coats, the outer couple of which scale off during use leaving other coats beneath to do their work in safety.

However when these outer coats are removed or injured, and the coats below with the blood vessels, are exposed, then trouble can start.

Fortunately Nature is kind here as elsewhere, and exposure to the air simply helps a cut or injury to heal more rapidly.

But if that little injury or cut, such as a hangnail, comes in contact with certain organisms which may be on money (this man was a banker), on a knife or scissors with which the hangnail is removed, perhaps happens by the teeth, then blood poisoning may result.

The condition of the individual, and the strength or virulence of the organisms enter into the fight. Organisms get into the body frequently, but infection occurs because the individual is worn out physically.

Fortunately in most cases the result is not fatal, but the lesson is there for us all.

Any little cut, if only the slightest scratch, should be treated with the idea of the dangers that may arise if proper care is not exercised.

Washing with any antiseptic solution of boracic acid, carbolic acid, lysol, iodine, putting just one layer of gauze over it to protect it from dirt, allows air to get to it, and helps it to heal quickly.

Death Treasure

by R. A. J. WALLING

Roger Fell was found dead in the library of Arden Hall, and one of them murdered him. But one of them couldn't have done it. Inspector Wayne has reason to think that the murder was premeditated. Fell was expecting a visitor, and had told the servants to admit him at once. But the visitor, whoever he was, was not announced. Instead, Fell was found dead. Inspector Wayne is dumbfounded by the story of the seven apparently innocent servants. Then Wayne finds a clue—a letter opener, missing from the desk, and discovers that Fell was stabbed to death with it.

Chapter 9

ENTER THE PROFESSOR

THE whispered words almost echoed in the stillness of the library:

"It's a man—I don't know if he's dead!"

Wayne snapped an order to the constable:

"Go and see what it is, Sanderson, and report back here alone. Nobody else is to enter this room."

Wayne faced us across a high mountain of suspicion. If this was a trick, he seemed to say, the tricksters should discover that Wayne was not a man to be played with.

They carried a heavy body into the room—it was Professor Laxton!

But it was no trick. The constable came back within a minute, and said something to Wayne. The inspector answered:

"Very well, I'll go. Keep guard, Sanderson. These gentlemen are to stay as they are—Dr. Eastley, will you please come with me?"

The minutes went on—two, four, five. . . .

There was a scuffle of footsteps outside. Wayne's voice called to the policeman to open. Wayne came in first, walking backwards. He carried the shoulders of a heavy man. Eastley appeared holding him under the knees. They lifted their burden to the table and stretched him out.

"There aren't two corpses on our hands," said Wayne, as though to relieve us. "This man's not dead. He's got a bit of concussion. He was found in a small passage off the corridor outside, leading to a wine cellar. How he got there the servants don't know. Your butler stumbled over him. And nobody seems to have seen him before. Do you know him?"

"No," said Mr. Fotherbury, "I've never seen him."

"And you, gentlemen?"

But nobody knew the man on the table except me, and I remembered that Laxton had asked me to keep his visit on Sunday night secret. I forgot that as I had met him a week before at the British Museum my denial must be confounded whenever his identity came out.

But I looked calmly down on Laxton's features and shook my head with the rest.

Eastley worked over the man with feverish haste, the inspector standing by fidgeting with a button of his coat. Presently he spoke to the constable.

"Sanderson, go and fetch the butler."

All of us save Eastley were looking at the door when the butler came in—a middle-aged man in black, extremely scared.

"You're the butler?" said Wayne. "Tell me what happened. Do you know this man?" But the butler did not know him.

"Where did you see him this afternoon?"

"Lying in the passage leading to the wine cellar! It's rather dark just there. I fell over him."

"Well? Go on."

"I picked myself up and went and switched on the light. Then I saw him. Thought he was dead. Ran out and called the footman."

"And then you called me, I see. Now, Mr.—"

"Carter," said Mr. Fotherbury.

"Now, Mr. Carter, how did he get into the house? Did the footman see him come in?"

"Ferris says 'No.' Nobody came into the house after you and the constable."

The butler had nothing else to tell. Wayne guided him out of the room.

The footman could tell the inspector very little more than Carter. But the little was important.

He had been on duty in the hall all the afternoon. He admitted the inspector and the constable. After them, nobody. The last before them was Mr. Fell.

The footman had not shown Fell to the library, as he knew the way very well. The others were familiar with the room and the minute or two necessary to take me to the library and to return was the only time the hall had been left unattended since a quarter to three. On his way back to the hall he had seen no one.

Although one could certainly enter the house through the kitchen or the conservatory, at the other end from the library, no one could reach the corridor without passing through the hall. So that, it seemed proven, in the two minutes while I was being escorted to the library, two persons entered the house. One was Laxton, the other the person responsible for Laxton's present condition.

Wayne had a plateful—a murder and seven men any one of whom, in his suspicion, might have done it. And now an unconscious, unknown man, apparently the victim of another outrage.

Wayne dismissed the footman and turned to Eastley.

"What do you make of him?"

"Nothing serious, I think. He's taken a hard upper-cut fair on the chin. A basin of water and a teaspoonful of brandy—and that's that."

"Then for heaven's sake get him out of this. Here, Sanderson—help the doctor to carry him away."

Laxton was hauled off the table and carried out of the room. Wayne closed the door, and we were back again in the old posture of suspicion and defense, with the form of Fell on the floor before us, and the old oppression closing down.

Quite clearly, Wayne did not know what to do.

I became aware that Somerfield had pulled a piece of writing paper out of a stand on the table and scribbled a few words on it before pushing it to Royle, who glanced at it and nodded. Wayne was also aware of it.

"I'll see that, please!" he rapped out in a voice that made us all jump.

"Surely," said Somerfield quietly, passing the paper to me. I handed it on. Wayne read it.

"What's the little game?" he asked. "You've written, 'He's forgotten the keyhole.' What d'you mean by that?"

"Just that. You've forgotten the keyhole," said Somerfield, "and nobody else has thought of it. I'm just guessing that Fell's message may have arrived from outside—that Roger Fell was shot through the keyhole!"

Miss Somerfield stumbles on the solution of the murder! Questions the story tomorrow.

HEINICKE TELLS ABOUT FRUIT GROWERS' TRIP

The New York fruit growers who took part in the recent tour to the Shenandoah-Cumberland region of Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia are convinced that this section is a very worthy competitor of New York state, according to Professor A. J. Heinicke, head of the pomology department at Cornell University. The majority of orchards seen on the tour are given conscientious care and they produce excellent fruit.

Most of the orchards are relatively young, says Professor Heinicke, and they are located on well drained soil naturally adapted to apples. The orchard sites are chosen primarily with reference to air drainage so as to reduce the frost hazard. Many of them are found on the tops of ridges or on rather steep mountain sides. Even though the soil is fundamentally good fruit soil, considerable attention is nevertheless given to building up fertility of the orchard by the use of the leguminous cover crops and fertilizers. Where cultivation is practiced the cover crop is usually sown early in the season.

Abundant Spraying.

Surprisingly large amounts of liquid spray are used to combat insects and diseases; some of the growers report as high as 15 and even 20 gallons a tree for each application. Modern equipment is used in most cases. Emphasis is placed on producing a good quality fruit and care is taken to put up a dependable pack. In West Virginia the state has established a demonstration packing house to teach the growers how to handle their fruit to best advantage. Shipping point inspection is in great favor throughout the region.

Many of the orchards are rather large enterprises compared to New York fruit farms. They are managed by wide-awake and competent men who seem to have the will to over come any obstacle that stands in the way of their success. The efforts to eliminate the cedar rust which has been a serious drawback to the industry for many years past indicates how determined these growers are to over come handicaps.

The principal varieties grown in the Shenandoah-Cumberland section are the York Imperial, Stayman Winesap, Grimes Golden, Delicious, and Ben Davis; and in the Piedmont section the Winesap and the Albemarle Pippin. Most of these varieties do remarkably well and grow to perfection in many orchards.

Lessons for New York.

The trip convinced those who had not previously reached that conclusion that New York growers will be in a position to compete successfully only if they concentrate on varieties adapted to New York conditions and provided they concentrate their orchards on soil naturally well drained and otherwise suitable for good yields. Fruit produced on marginal lands or orchards which receive more or less indifferent care will soon be out of the running.

While most of the growers realized that the sections which they visited are growing some excellent fruit, there was no feeling of discouragement on the part of those who had good orchards back home. The trip served rather as an inspiration to renew and sustain efforts toward more conscientious attention to the details of the growing and handling of their own fruit.

The desirability of cooperative efforts for marketing high quality eastern apples was one of the questions raised by Governor Byrd of Virginia. Both New York and the Shenandoah-Cumberland section export large quantities of fruit and the requirements of that market need careful attention.

Watson Hollow In Days Gone By

(By C. A. Winchell)

Although Watson Hollow, in the town of Olive, is visited annually by hundreds of people, who go there to fish for trout or picnic in the cool shadows of the towering mountains, it is doubtful if many of these visitors realize that in this quiet valley the wheels of industry once hummed, and that big business made its home there. To natives of this section, however, it is an old and oft-told story, of how the stone foundations and rotten timbers which now dot the hollow, once formed a part of commercial and residential structures of no mean dimensions, and of far from small economic importance.

Let us take a little journey into the past, then, and gain a glimpse of Watson Hollow as it really was in the year 1875, when mills, stores, and houses lined both the Bushkill stream and the highway which followed it closely all the way from old West Shokan westward to the Denning line. Suppose one were traveling downstream on the Hollow road and through the settled portion of what was the R. R. Livingston tract of the Hardenbergh Patent; the first residence was that owned by Nathan W. Watson, one of the most prominent of those capable business men who brought to Olive that prosperity which invariably accompanies a well-conducted commercial enterprise. Mr. Watson, one time supervisor of Olive, ran a great tannery on the banks of the Bushkill, and there were several buildings belonging to him, in a row, on the left hand side of the road.

A little farther on, at the junction of the South Hollow stream, or "Canape," as that fisherman's haunt is more generally known, there was a sawmill, standing on the south side of the brook and just west of where the ruins of the old bridge may be seen today. And, up in the Canape, in about as wild a spot as could be imagined, was the farm and mill of Orson Every. Going back again to the main road, on the left hand side, was Colonel White's house—the Colonel White who was an ex-army officer and who used to ride abroad on a white charger. The colonel kept a store a short distance farther down the hollow, between the brook and the road. In after years Colonel White conducted a store business in what was known as the "brick house," in the old village of West Shokan. Below Colonel White's, on the left side of the road, were the store, residence and boarding house of Mr. Watson, while opposite these buildings and along the brook was the big tannery run by Mr. Watson. Next came Colonel White's store and other buildings, and, a bit farther on, a stave mill, just below which was the residence of C. Hickey. A few yards east of the Hickey place was another sawmill.

On the left side of the road were the places of L. Bell, J. C. North, Charles Eckert, M. M. Eckert and W. H. Winchell, while nearly opposite the Winchell house was the residence of C. Eckert and still another mill. Below this mill was Thomas Hill's sawmill, a little way above his homestead, which stood on the north side of the road. Then, the home of J. Eckert, about where the Sigourney mansion now stands, and a little farther down was the Andrew Harkness place. This brings the traveler of '75 well out of the Hollow, though he is still in the section known as Bushkill. Just a little journey into the past, recalling the days when great trees went crashing down the mountainsides, to be peeled for their bark and left lying to rot through the years; when the roar of the bark grinder and the scream of the buzz saw were heard in the land; when Watson Hollow was a bustling village instead of merely a quiet isolated valley peopled largely by memories.

LEAPS FROM 13-STORY WINDOW, COULDN'T SLEEP

Philadelphia, Aug. 21 (AP).—Colonel Walter T. Bradley, wealthy coal magnate and Union League member, clad only in underwear, leaped or fell to instant death today from his apartment on the thirteenth floor of the Warwick Hotel at 17th and Locust streets.

Following an investigation police stated they believed Colonel Bradley had committed suicide after trying vainly to get some sleep. A screen, police said, had been removed from the window from which the body plunged.

Colonel Bradley, it is stated, had been in ill health for some time and his eyesight had been failing for the past few months.

His title as colonel came from the fact that he had served on the staffs of several governors. He was one of the leading spirits behind the formation of the Pennsylvania Reserve Militia and served for 16 years in the National Guard.

"LONG, LONG JOURNEY" WAS TAKEN IN TAXICAB

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—A $28 taxicab ride proved to be the "long, long journey" taken by Mrs. W. C. Edwards, songwriter, of Beaumont, Tex., when she disappeared last Saturday, leaving a suicide note.

Police, on the strength of the note and appeals from relatives in Texas dragged the East river in the vicinity of Brooklyn Bridge in search for her body.

Mrs. Edwards, who is also known as Lola Enloe, was located yesterday at the Hotel Pennsylvania, where she had registered as Lois Kelly. She was traced when she telephoned to another hotel to have mail addressed to Lola Enloe forwarded to "Miss Kelly."

She professed to have no recollection of events since her disappearance other than that she rode "miles and miles in a taxicab."

Churchill Warns Of Propaganda Against Empire

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 21 (AP).—Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the British exchequer, today was enroute to Regina, the Saskatchewan capital, after sounding a warning here against subversive propaganda to disintegrate the British Empire.

Addressing a capacity audience in the Walker Theatre last night, Mr. Churchill said the British Empire had emerged through the fire of battle intact and stronger than ever. He emphasized the solidarity of the component parts of the commonwealth of nations, ridiculed the idea of war with the United States and urged continuation of the negotiations for parity in naval armaments.

Referring to subversive propaganda, Mr. Churchill mentioned a speech made since his arrival in this country by a Mr. Young in the Williams College Institute of Politics in the United States.

"Mr. Young," he said, "appears to be a member of parliament and may be so. This gentleman delivered an oration of a very alarming character upon the relations of Great Britain and the United States, making out there was antagonism and that they were breaking apart, and that some great catastrophe would occur."

Mr. Churchill said the object was to frighten British statesmen and British men and women in every part of the Empire from standing up for their rights, because it was represented that if they did some catastrophe would occur. There was no basis for such fear.

"But let us be careful not to allow ourselves to be drawn from proper assertion of our own rights and interests in respect to any other country in the world," he said.

Three Injured in Motor Accident

Three men were severely injured in a motor car accident at Maple Hill shortly before midnight Tuesday when their car left the road overturning in the ditch. A fourth man in the car escaped injury.

At the Benedictine Hospital, where all three injured men were brought by a passing motorist, it was stated this morning that the condition of John Ryan, a New York fireman, was serious. He sustained a fractured skull.

Arthur Simmons of the Bronx was injured about the chest and shoulder and may have suffered fractured ribs. His condition was reported fair as was that of Joseph Latell of New York. Latell was also injured about the chest and shoulder.

Just how the accident happened is not known as the men were all severely injured and it was not possible to get a coherent story from them. The car was being driven toward Kingston and was followed a short distance by another machine. When the car went into the ditch the second car stopped and picked up the injured men and brought them to the hospital where Dr. John F. Larkin attended them.

New Offer to Great Britain

The Hague, Aug. 21 (AP).—France, Italy, Belgium and Japan made Great Britain a new offer today in the hope of saving the conference of governments on reparations from a complete breakdown.

They guaranteed 50 per cent of Britain's claims for an increased share of the German payments would be satisfied.

Previously the committee of experts appointed to determine the worth of the former offer to Great Britain had reached a disagreement, some holding to Philip Snowden's contention it was between 20 and 30 per cent, and others maintaining it was between 50 and 60 per cent.

Civilization's Passwords

A missionary, captured by cannibals, and stripped of most of his clothing, managed to escape. Half-clad, he fled through the jungle, and after many hours he blundered into a native village where, breathless, he crouched against the wall of a native hut in an attempt to hide.

A voice from inside caused him to start.

"Oh, you hopeless imbecile," he heard. "Why on earth didn't you redouble hearts?"

"Thank goodness!" exclaimed the missionary, "at last I'm among civilized people again."—London Opinion.

Anemia

There are many different causes of anemia. Various forms of parasites or bacteria may invade the blood and cause a destruction of the blood corpuscles. This type of anemia is seen in malaria and in certain forms of blood poisoning. In other cases of anemia the blood cells are destroyed by some poison circulating in the blood. This type of anemia is seen in lead poisoning, in tuberculosis and in bright's disease. Anemia is also produced by constant loss of blood. Such loss of blood may be due to an ulcer or to blood-sucking parasites, such as hookworm.

CAS HUGGINS—Man's Term to Worry

Hard Lot of Farm Life in Florida

The following excerpts from a letter just received in Kingston from a mother of four fine children, who with the father has struggled hard to make and keep a home, educate the children, etc., may give the readers of The Freeman a more than ordinarily intimate picture of living conditions in Florida:

The first part of June we had this Mediterranean fly scare and on the fifteenth the larva having been discovered close by, thereby making us to come within Zone I, the plant board gang came here and destroyed our entire summer living, acres of wonderful snap beans, lima beans, tomatoes, and truck loads of lovely pears, grapes, figs. It just made me sick to see all these lovely things carried off and dumped into a deep pit and covered with a black, sticky spray. Then they cut down plums, persimmons and all the wild grapes and blackberries. The loss has been hundreds of millions of dollars to the people of Florida. Then on top of all this, the First National Bank of St. Augustine, the oldest and strongest (or so considered) National Bank in Florida failed and we lost every penny we had—all our life insurance, fire insurance and interest money and unless a miracle happens it looks as if we will lose our farm after so many weary years of toil and worry.

We have a Federal Farm Loan and the insurance and taxes have to be paid or they immediately foreclose. We not only lost our money but the place where we could always borrow. This is the bank where E (oldest daughter) was getting her school money too and it looks as if she will not be able to go back to college unless we can find some one else to loan her some money. It will be SUCH a disappointment to E if she cannot go back as she would complete the two years' course next year and then could get a salary of $15 a month more than as an ordinary teacher.

I have had an account at one store for twenty years and I actually had to beg for groceries for one week when the banks failed, so you can see how really terrible conditions are here and in so many other places in Florida, too. Every day we hear of banks failing in different parts of Florida.

The children are so large now it takes so much more to keep them going. I do want to have them graduate from high school any way, and if the boys are going to farm, I do want them to go to the State University Agricultural College and learn to do it properly.

Here it is...the first straight-eight in the $1000 field

the Roosevelt
MARMON-BUILT

THIS price field, once made up almost entirely of fours, and later dominated by sixes, now has a straight-eight as its leader!

Here it is—the Marmon-built Roosevelt—the world's first and only $1000 eight.

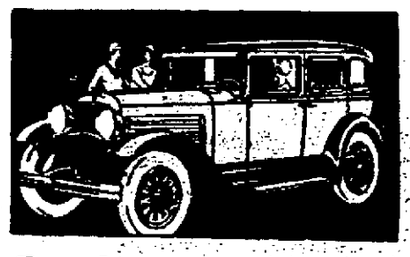
The motor develops a full 70 horsepower, as compared with 55 to 60 in most cars at this price. Smoother power—faster pick-up—less shifting—because it's an eight.

The Roosevelt is a full-sized five-passenger car. Commanding appearance on the street; roomy, restful and luxurious inside.

In appearance the Roosevelt suggests the distinction of the great name which it bears. Husky, yet perfectly proportioned.

As for easy riding—the Roosevelt is not excelled by any automobile. This holds good for all cars, irrespective of price, size or weight.

The greatest evidence is the car itself. Will you drive the Roosevelt at your first convenience?



A Marmon-Built Straight-Eight for Every Purse—Roosevelt, $995; Marmon 68, $1465; Marmon 78, $1965. Prices at factory. Group equipment at slightly extra cost.

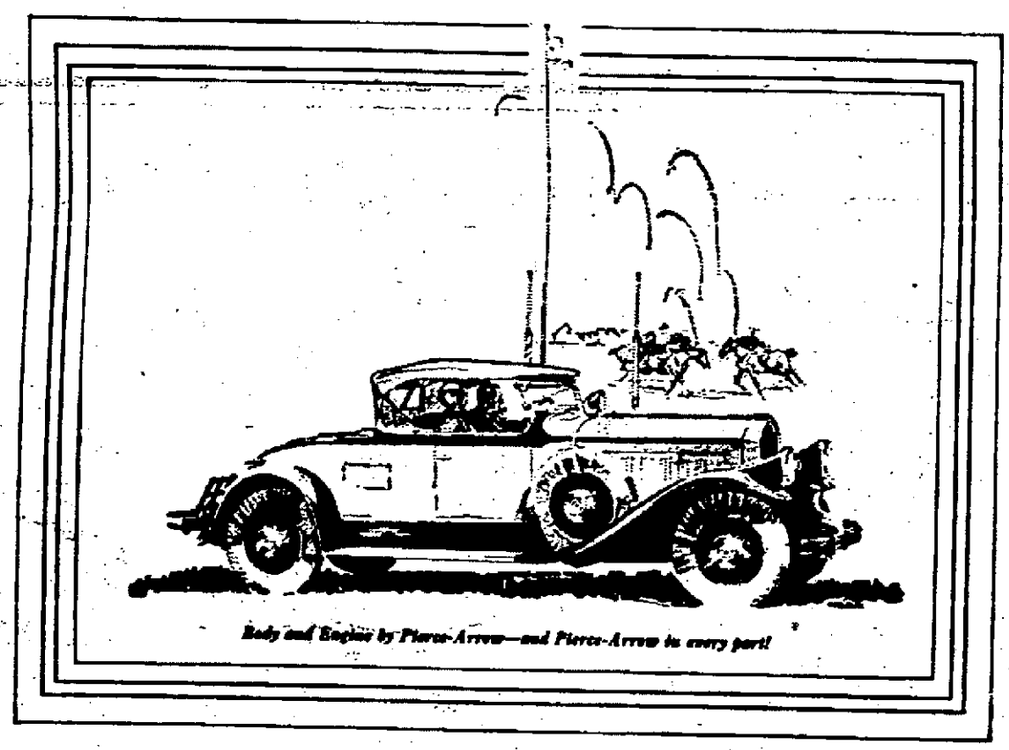
Why did they wait for This New Pierce-Arrow?



The above question does not long remain unanswered after a glimpse of the new Straight Eight. And this is especially true if other fine cars are present for comparison.

The new Straight Eight was purposed to be the finest car that Pierce-Arrow ever produced. That it should also have been a remodeler of fine car fashions could not have been foreseen. But that is precisely what happened.

The long, low-swung slenderness of the new Pierce-Arrow was welcomed by fine car owners grown tired of bulk and stodginess in big automobiles. So great, in fact, was the conquest that Pierce-Arrow served a waiting-list for many months. And while demand s[illegible]ds production, some of the most favore[illegible] the new Straight Eight line are now [illegible] shown.

No Country Tries Our Dry Example

By Edward S. Martin, in the September Harper's Magazine.

In the states that were dry before the Amendment was passed, that liked the dry condition and wanted to continue, the Amendment is popular. In the big cities it does not work so well, but even in the big cities there are comparatively few thoughtful persons who want back the conditions that existed before the Amendment took effect. The inexpediency of corner saloons and of the bar and the brass rail are generally admitted. Few wets want those institutions back. They want a wiser and more orderly control of the rum traffic. For though our experiments have had a great influence so that we are an object lesson to the world, no other country is following our example of flat prohibition. The Canadian Provinces have tried it and quit and are now working along under modified laws. In Great Britain there has been a reduction in the number of public houses and the number of hours daily that they can keep open and in the potency of their beer. Henry Ford says that such methods are all right for England or Germany but that for us our method is the right one. But that seems to be mere assertions, for, as he has said, he has factories in Europe and finds no trouble at all in finding workmen fit to work in them. He believes there are more teetotalers in Europe than we think, and teetotalers he finds to be the best workmen. No doubt they are more tractable, more dependable but perhaps not of the highest talent always. Rum has never been recommended as a means of making careful workmen, but careful workmen are not the sole need of the world. We need thinkers, persons of imagination, rulers, and at times fighters. Four gentlemen represented us in the conference on reparations. Was any one of them a teetotaler? No. They were men in the prime of life, in full possession of their faculties, patient and laborious, but not one of them was a teetotaler.

Ancient Property Laws Protected the Weaker

The oldest Greek statute now extant, governing the disposition of "real" property, comes from the island of Crete. This is the law of the city of Gortyna, dating from perhaps B. C. 400. This inscription, the largest existing fragment of any Greek law, came to light less than fifty years ago; for the stones on which it was chiseled had been buried for 2,000 years or more and its discovery made a sensation in the learned world. It was about thirty feet long in its original form; the broken pieces are now scattered in several museums.

These laws show that more than 2,000 years ago women in this Cretean city could own property. Moreover, the law provided that a husband could not sell or mortgage his wife's property; nor could a son dispose of his mother's property. If a mother dies, says this ancient statute on property, and leaves children, the father has power over her property, but he cannot sell it or mortgage it unless the children consent, when they come of age. Moreover, if the father marries another woman after the first wife's death, the children of the first wife shall have power over their mother's property. Penalties are provided for the violation of any of these provisions.

Origin of Vegetables in Common Use Today

Celery is spoken of in the "Odyssey," and is later mentioned by Pliny the Elder, which lends scientists to believe it must have originated either in Greece or the Dardanelles. Lettuce also is native to Greece. Sesame, walnuts, peas, spinach, watermelon, were all known in China 200 B. C. Spinach was also brought back from New Zealand by Cook after his famous voyage. Sweet potatoes were known in China 2700 B. C. Radishes were cultivated in Japan and China from the earliest historical records. Bananas, first thought to have originated in Asia, are now known to have had their origin in Central and South America. The first records of figs were found in an early drawing in the Pyramid of Gizeh, Egypt, 2800 B. C. From America prickly pear, maize and tobacco were first imported into Europe and Asia after the voyage of Magellan, 1520-21. Cabbage was first known on the isle of Lapland, Denmark, and on the isle of Heligoland. Salsify was native of Greece, Dalmatia, Italy and Algeria. The Jerusalem artichoke was discovered about the same time, 1616, in both Brazil and Canada. Garlic originated in Sicily.

KNOWLEDGE IS ESTOPPEL LOSS EXCEEDS BILLION DOLLARS ANNUALLY

More than a billion dollars in savings are lost annually by the American people because they are ignorant of investment principles and because they possess the gambling instinct, this, in brief, is the message contained in a bulletin recently made public by the National Better Business Bureau, Inc., 382 Madison avenue, New York, N. Y. The bulletin outlines an intensified national program which the bureau is launching to expose swindling practices and provide the inexperienced investor with some practical information on how he can protect himself.

Buying fraudulent stock and dealing with fraudulent promoters constitute, according to the bulletin, problems which can only be solved through educating the public to fraudulent schemes. There is, however, the bulletin continues, always need for sound legislation and able law administration aimed to punish those who perpetrate frauds.

The bulletin cites statements made by Blue Sky Commissioners from thirty-three states. It quotes those made by commissioners in Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Georgia, Idaho, Kentucky, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, and Wisconsin to show that the victims of fraud come from both the educated and uneducated classes, education in practical financial matters being lacking in both. According to the bulletin this lack of education is astounding and gives the fraudulent promoter a clear advantage over uninformed people who take chances on promises and representations that would be immediately recognized as having the suspicious ear-marks of fraud by persons with only a practical elementary knowledge of securities.

The bulletin quotes the commissioners of California, Indiana, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, and Tennessee on the need for investment education, while Wisconsin cites several cases which show how easy it is for people to lose money if they do not investigate before investing.

Briefly calling attention to the tremendous public interest in securities and the broad variety of issues which provide ample opportunity for fraudulent promoters to build up schemes to deceive uneducated investors by making them believe that these offerings are bona fide, the bulletin goes on to describe the "tipster sheet" evil and declares that schemes to defraud are endless and law enforcement activity necessarily slow.

The need for investment education is emphasized in quotations made by E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York Stock Exchange; Horace Donnelly, solicitor of the United States Postoffice Department; the financial editor of the New York Evening Post and others.

Better Business Bureaus, the bulletins continues, learned ten years ago that the most successful method of protecting the public is to warn investors of existing fraud and to advise them to investigate before investing. This is a system which is known as the "Before You Invest—Investigate" plan.

In conclusion the bulletin states that the National Better Business Bureau has made plans to intensify its educational program by providing a means by which all legitimate business interests can unite to prevent fraud. The bulletin asks all such interests to give serious thought to the possibility of cooperating with the bureau.

These plans include: the weekly issuance of a series of fifty-two posters designed to protect industrial employes from many types of fraud; the publication of a practical booklet of financial information; the expansion of Better Business Bureau work by extending it to communities which cannot finance organizations the size of the present affiliated bureaus; the extension of protective work among customer owner stockholders; and the increasing of cooperation between the National Bureau and other agencies engaged in the business of exposing and suppressing fraud.

Now all debate about
Gasoline Quality is settled

It's Here Today

Socony Special Plus Ethyl

TWO years ago we introduced Socony Special—a superior high-compression gasoline. Thousands of motorists discovered that it was far better than other gasolines, and gladly paid the extra cost.

The sales mounted. Perhaps we should have been satisfied, but we were not. We said: "Is there anything that we can possibly do to make Socony Special still better?"

There was one thing. We could add Ethyl fluid to it.

Ethyl fluid is an anti-knock preparation developed by General Motors. Even a poor gasoline can be given "zero knock-rating" if enough Ethyl fluid is added. But a poor gasoline with a zero knock-rating is still a poor gasoline.

Never in New York and New England has Ethyl fluid been added to a gasoline of Socony Special quality. We decided—at extra cost to ourselves, but no extra cost to you—to do what had never been done.

Today for the first time you can buy Socony Special plus Ethyl, at the same price that you have been paying for Socony Special alone. The gasoline debate is settled. We guarantee that in anti-knock quality, in smooth performance, in pick-up, in everything that you want in a gasoline, the new Socony Special (with Ethyl) is better than any gasoline you have ever used.

What ETHYL is

Ethyl fluid is the standard anti-knock compound, containing tetraethyl lead. It was developed in the General Motors Research Laboratories to meet the needs of the present-day high-compression motors.

Remember, it is the basic gasoline to which Ethyl fluid is added that determines the ultimate quality of an Ethyl gasoline. The Socony Special which you have been using was a superior high-compression gasoline. With the Ethyl fluid added, this new Socony Special will make old cars run like new cars, and will make new cars perform in a way that you have never known before.

Test It for Just One Week

We urge you not to lose a single day in trying this amazing new motor fuel. By all means give it a fair and honest trial. Make sure your tank is empty, or nearly empty, so that your motor will get the full benefit of this new Socony Special.

Use it for a week. Check your pick-up and power. Note the smooth operation and complete control. At the end of a week you'll be convinced. From then on, no other gasoline will ever do.

SOCONY SPECIAL plus ETHYL FLUID equals THE BEST GASOLINE EVER PRODUCED

Fountain of Wine

On the first Sunday of July the Brunnenfest, or Feast of the Fountain; is held at Wangen, in Alsace; and it presents an interesting contrast to the procession at Boulbon in that far from being in the nature of a benediction, it commemorates the removal of a tax of 6,000 gallons of wine which Wangen had once to pay annually to an abbey in Strasbourg. On the day of the Brunnenfest, therefore, the public fountain runs not water but wine, and hundreds of visitors throng to the village to share in so lavish a gift.

Because women would not like to appear on the streets in the unbecoming prison dress, is the reason given by a prison official why there never has been an attempted escape by a woman in Scotland.

Marked Improvement In This Local Lady's Health

Kidney Disorders, Backache, Constipation and Nervousness All Relieved By Nu-Erb She Says

"For some time past, I have been in poor health because of kidney troubles and nervous disorders," said Miss Lena Berger, 110 Tremper St., Kingston., N. Y., who is employed locally by the Herkley Powder Company.

"I was troubled with a continual aching pain across my back and my nerves were in such a disordered, weakened condition that I was irritable, restless and could not sleep at night. I had a very poor appetite and was troubled much because of constipation.

"I have only been using the Nu-Erb a short time, but it has given me splendid relief from each one of these troubles. The pains in my back are now scarcely noticeable. My nerves are much stronger. I sleep soundly at night and get up in the mornings feeling refreshed and ready for my day's work. Nu-Erb has also relieved the constipation and strengthened my system in every respect."

Nu-Erb is a splendid system cleanser and health builder. The ideal natural tonic. It cleanses the system of poisonous waste matter, strengthens and regulates the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, quiets the nerves and promotes sound refreshing sleep. If you suffer in any way you owe it to yourself to investigate this herbal medicine today.

McBride Drug Store, 312 Wall St., is headquarters in Kingston for Nu-Erb. Go see the Nu-Erb man now making his headquarters there and let him explain to you the merits of this remarkable medicine.

Spokane Sun God Flew 7,200 Miles

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 21 (AP).—Nick Mamer and Art Walker were home today after having pushed the glistening orange Spokane Sun God across the continent and back in a five-day non-stop refueling flight.

The small plane's landing gear touched the ground at Felts Field at 5:59:49 p. m. (P. S. T.) last night, a minute less than five days after the ship was sent towards San Francisco, the first refueling point.

Both men said the 300-horsepower Wright motor was "working like a top" and that they had hoped they would be permitted to continue the flight either to the coast or to the air derby at Cleveland. The plane flew 7,200 miles on the trip.

Shrinking Fish Cause Angler to Go to Court

Santa Fe, N. M.—Shrinking fish are in for a court test.

And a new alibi is being formulated for fishermen caught with fish smaller than the law allows. Recently a fisherman was arrested near here for having short fish in his possession.

"But," the fisherman told R. L. Perry, state game and fish commissioner, "they were regulation size when I caught them."

The fish in question were half an inch shorter than the standard, but the fisherman was so emphatic that they were of legal length when caught that he caught another fish "just to show" the game warden.

The small fish did shrink, the warden admitted. But the case now will have to be decided by the courts, and in the future fishermen may have to "allow for shrinkage" when catching fish that are just over the size limit.

DeMolay Chapter Shows Activity

Monday evening at the regular meeting of Colonial Chapter, Order of DeMolay, the boys entertained about 50 members of Queen City (Poughkeepsie) Chapter. The boys made the trip in private cars and brought three of their "dads" with them.

During the meeting "Dad" Davis of Colonial Chapter presented Brother Millard of Poughkeepsie, District Governor of the 14th district of New York, on his official visit to Colonial. Brother Millard spoke on DeMolay meetings which he had witnessed in various cities of his district and complimented the local boys on their ritual work.

The Poughkeepsie Chapter has a DeMolay auxiliary which furnishes a good deal of fun besides helping in carrying out various plans. Some time ago Colonial tried to organize an auxiliary but was not successful. Another attempt will probably be made in the near future.

October 21 is parents' day in DeMolay. On this night the boys will entertain the parents of all the members in a fine program of fun and instruction in DeMolay methods.

During the evening Dad Davis announced that the Greater International DeMolay Committee which had been functioning for the last few months has been reappointed. It is this committee's job to make DeMolay in their own chapter work with a greater smoothness and more ease.

Saturday afternoon Colonial Chapter will play baseball with the Queen City Chapter on the Athletic Field. Both teams expect to win and a fine game is assured.

Tagging Major League Bases

By HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The two major league races have developed almost identical situations, with the Philadelphia Athletics 12 games in front of their nearest American League opposition and the Chicago Cubs nine and one-half games to the good in the National circuit.

Although the Cubs got no better than an even break with the New York Giants yesterday they increased their lead by half a game, as the Pittsburgh Pirates were defeated by the Phillies.

Both Cub-Giant games were pitchers' battles. Freddy Fitzsimmons outpitched Guy Bush in the opener and the Giants won by 4 to 1. In the nightcap, however, Hal Carlson blanked the Giants with six hits and the Cubs won 1-0.

The Phils conquered the Pirates by an 8-6 count for the third time in a row. Brame was shelled for eight Phil runs in the first three innings but Petty and Hill held the Quakers scoreless thereafter. Lou Koupal pitched great ball until the seventh when the Corsairs scored five runs, three of them on Paul Waner's homer. Claude Willoughby rushed to the rescue and held the Pittsburghers runless the rest of the way.

Thanks to another brilliant pitching performance by Ray Moss, the Brooklyn Dodgers got an even break in two games with the St. Louis Cardinals. After Wee Willie Sherdel had outpitched Dazzy Vance to give the Cards the first game, 3-2, Moss blanked the Red Birds with four hits and walked off with a 4-0 triumph. It was Moss's fourth successive win.

Red Lucas pitched the Cincinnati Reds to an easy 6-2 victory over Boston to record his 16th win of the season.

In the American League the Yankees picked up a game on the Athletics by beating Chicago, 5-4, while the A's were losing to St. Louis, 2-1.

Ralph Kress's homer with one on in the sixth decided a tight pitchers' battle between Alvin Crowder of the Browns and George Earnshaw and Jack Quinn of the A's at St. Louis. Crowder permitted only four hits.

Urban Faber, veteran Chicago right hander, was presented with various gifts on "his day" by 18,000 fans but he could not check a heavy Yankee batting assault. Tom Zachary received credit for his ninth straight victory of the season, although Wiley Moore was called to the rescue in the seventh.

Burke was knocked out of the box in the first inning by Cleveland but Myles Thomas stopped the Indians dead thereafter and Washington walked away with a 6-2 verdict. Thomas came in with two runs over the bases filled and none out in the first inning. He retired the side without further scoring and allowed only six hits all told.

The rampaging Boston Red Sox assaulted three Detroit pitchers for 15 hits and beat the Tigers, 12-8. Charlie Ruffing went the route for Boston, although he was nicked for 13 hits. He aided his own cause with a double and two singles, drove in one run and scored two.

WORLD'S CHAMPION DOUBLES TENNIS TEAM DEFEATED.

Newport, R. I., August 21 (AP).—The amazing defeat of Johnny Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, world's champion doubles tennis team, by Philip Neer of Portland, Ore., winner of the national intercollegiate title back in 1921, and Bruce Barnes, 19-year-old Austin, Texas, player, who was making his debut in a major tournament, overshadowed everything else here today.

Neer and Barnes had scarcely been introduced to each other when the play started and had not been conceded a chance to win. But instead they captured the first set 6-4, dropped the second, 1-6, and took the final and deciding one, 6-3.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould,
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

You see his name rarely in the box scores any more, but Eddie Collins, king-pin of second baseman when the Old Athletics were winning world's championships, is a vital cog in the New A's. As staff aide to General Connie Mack, Collins takes over a good deal of the detail work. Brought up from his college days in the Mack school of thought, Eddie is a keen strategist himself, a quick-thinker with the same intuition that Ty Cobb possessed for doing the right thing.

Now that Cobb has retired, Collins, in his twenty-second consecutive year in the majors, has the longest continuous service record of any player still in uniform.

Recently I asked Collins the secret of Mack's ability to maintain so keen a grasp of baseball's swift moving affairs after so long a term as manager and at an age when most elderly gentlemen prefer ease or golf to directing an exciting ball game from a hard, hot bench.

"You know, it never ceases to amaze me—the real enthusiasm that Mr. Mack retains," replied Eddie. "Of course he has forgotten more about the game than most of us will ever know, yet he retains the memory of everything essential. The style of play has changed but Mr. Mack has kept up with it. I have never seen anyone so consistently keen in sizing up situations and plays, so able in handling a variety of players, many of them temperamental—it is almost uncanny to me.

"The club this year is working its head off for one man—Connie Mack. Of course we all like to be with a winner but to a man the A's think more of winning this pennant for Mr. Mack than they do for any extra money or glory they may get out of it."

Like many veterans, Eddie Collins regrets the way the free-hitting era of baseball has ruined most of the old "inside stuff."

"I don't say we were any smarter in the old days but the game of 15 to 20 years ago certainly put more premium on fast-thinking and quick action than nowadays," he remarked. "A big flock of runs now can knock the best-prepared piece of strategy all over the field.

"I think the reason for a lot of the hitting is lack of confidence among many pitchers after they have been battered up. You know, pitching is 50 per cent confidence, anyway, with around 30 per cent for ability and 20 per cent for the 'breaks.' Hitting is just about the same."

It's the same in golf and most any other sport. The best shot-maker in the world, if he loses confidence for one reason or another, will start dubbing his strokes. There may be some dispute about how far Babe Ruth can drive a golf ball but there is 100 per cent confidence on the Babe's part that he can knock it a "mile" as well as lop-sided.

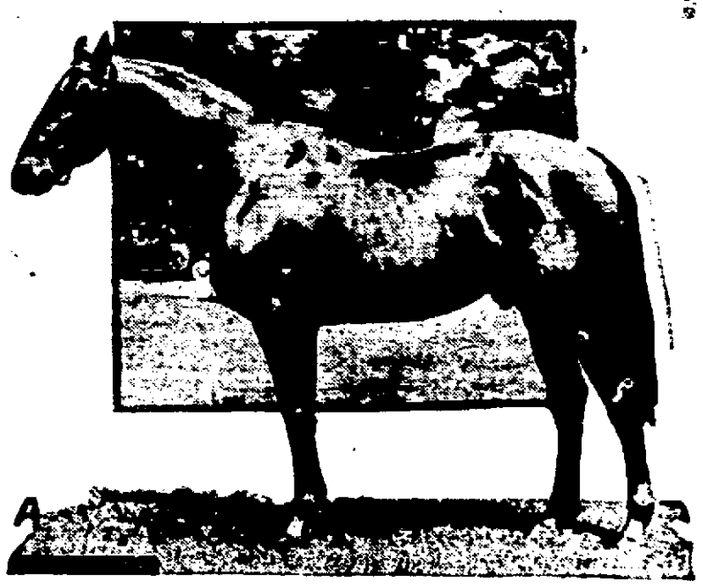
One Point of View

Love is most obscure when it loves according to needs, and not according to merit.

Immortalize Man o' War in Bronze



Man o' War Was Greatest Racer of All Times.

Plans to immortalize Man o' War by having made a life-size bronze of the famous race horse were disclosed by Gov. Flem D. Sampson, following an exchange of letters with Frank C. Reilly, New York, who recently conceived the idea.

Reilly saw Man o' War at Lexington during a tour of the Kentucky bluegrass as a member of the governor's party on the Sunday after derby day this year, and recently wrote Governor Sampson. Reilly said he has obtained the consent of F. G. R. Roth, sculptor, to model Man o' War. Reilly wired the governor that the consent of Samuel D. Riddle, owner of Man o' War, has been obtained subject to arrangements being made with Miss Elizabeth Daingerfield, horse trainer, who has charge of Man o' War, as to the time the modeling is to be done.

It is planned to have the bronze cast from the sculptor's model by Bertelli, and to place it at Churchill Downs, the course over which the historic Kentucky derby is run annually. Man o' War is now in stud at the Daingerfield farm near Lexington.

The cost of the casting, delivered in Louisville, would be $7,600, Reilly advised the governor, adding that he would head the subscription list with a contribution of $250. The commission of the sculptor will be borne by Reilly personally, he said.

Pleasant Thought

Everything goes by comparison in this old vale of tears and laughter, and when Hercules was cleaning the Augean stables that time we suppose he said in his cheerful way: Well, anyhow, it isn't as if it were the chicken house.—Ohio State Journal.

Record to Shoot At

One of the greatest games ever played in the senior circuit took place at Cincinnati on May 2, 1917, when Fred Toney of the Cincinnati Reds and Jim Vaughn of the Chicago Cubs engaged in a duel which lasted ten innings, Cincinnati winning in the last of the tenth. Neither pitcher allowed a hit for nine innings, Vaughn losing in the tenth while Toney ran his hitless innings through the tenth. A modern major league record which has never been equaled by two pitchers in the same game.

Singles Too Skimpy So Shires Is After Homers

Art Shires, who has had plenty of ups and downs since joining the White Sox, has discovered a method of getting more ups. He is going to get more extra-base hits.

"No use of a great hitter like me getting himself a flock of skimpy singles," Shires informed the world over the radio. "You never get your name in the headlines with singles. It's distance the public wants. From now on I'm aiming for the next county. I'm going out after those home runs."

"Come out and razz me," he urged his audience. "You'll go away cheering me when I slam them against those bleachers. I sure can hit that ball and I'm not so bad around first base, either."

Connecticut Youth Is Fine Olympic Prospect

Dan Chubbuck, Connecticut Aggie sophomore, will put his home town on the map at the next Olympics unless all signs fail.

Chubbuck, now nineteen, broke two Eastern intercollegiate and five of his own college records in his first season of varsity competition.

He specializes in the shotput and discus and can do more than his share in the century, the broad jump and 220-yard low hurdles.

Paul E. Bitgood, Aggie coach, now is working Chubbuck in the pole vault and high jump to prepare him for the 1929 Penn relays. Bitgood banks on his protege to show himself worthy of Olympic team consideration at this meet.

Longest Home Run

Roy Carlyle, left fielder on the Oakland Oaks, Pacific Coast league, who, in a game with the San Francisco Missions, made the longest home run ever recorded in baseball, driving the ball 616 feet. Carlyle was formerly with the New York Yankees and the Boston Americans.

Funny Fatherhood

It is estimated that at least 4,000 motherless every normally in some part of the world. In the United States 2,000 or more are reported each year. The majority, however, are fatherless or become so through deserted families.

• • •

Richard W. (Rube) Marquard, who was purchased for the New York Giants in 1908 for the then record price of $11,000, has been signed as manager of the Jacksonville club of the Southeastern league.

Schmeling to Germany for Vacation.

New York, August 21 (AP).—Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, whose license has been revoked by the New York state athletic commission, will sail Saturday for Germany. He plans to return to the United States after a brief vacation. Schmeling said he would fight Scott for Fugazy only if permitted to sign a new contract in the place of the one the promoter now holds with the signature of Arthur Buelow, the manager disclaimed by Schmeling but recognized by the boxing commission.

P.O.-Apollo-W. S. Friday Night

The P. O.-Apollo-West Shore game, postponed three times for different reasons, will be staged Friday evening at the Athletic Field. Each team will have its full strength and a good game is anticipated. Ken Mabie will pitch for the Polos, while Johnny Carpenter will twirl them for the Railroaders.

Stribling and Schmeling Signed.

Evansville, Ind., August 21 (AP).—W. L. (Young) Stribling, of Macon, Ga., has signed with Gabe Kauffman, Kansas City, Mo., promoter, to fight Max Schmeling at Miami, Fla., in January, "Pa" Stribling announced here yesterday. Stribling meets Joe Packo, Toledo heavyweight, here Monday night.

Two Star Bouts Friday Evening

Friday night at the Kingston Fair Grounds two star 10-round heavyweight bouts will feature the list of fights. The men fighting in these bouts have splendid reputations, and the fans may be sure to see some real pugilistic battles that can be classed with the best staged at the grounds this season. That's saying a great deal.

Bunno Alverez, the Spanish heavyweight, and "Big Bill" Freeman, West Point colored soldier and heavyweight champ of the New York National Guard, will throw punches at each other in one of the ten rounders.

Jack Warren, a heavyweight from Chicago, will meet Dan O'Connel from New Jersey, another boy in the heavyweight class, in a fight scheduled to go ten rounds. Warren, the Windy City scrapper, has been defeated but three times in four years of fighting. On the other hand, out of 45 fights, he has won eight on knock outs, 23 by decisions and the other eight were called draws.

Supporting these bouts are one 6 rounder in which Joe Pino, Tampa, Florida, vs. Billy Rapp, New York; two four rounders in which Allen Gibb, New York, vs. Augustine Perez, Porto Rico; Joe Werner, Kingston, vs. Dusty Dumont, New York.

Beyond Nature's Power

Nature has no promise for society, least of all, any remedy for sin.—Horace Bushnell.

To The Public . . . .

I've been so busy getting the store arranged after our Season's End Sale, that I haven't had time to thank you all for your wonderful cooperation. . . . .

This has been one of, it not the biggest storewide sale that we have ever held and we surely appreciate the way you patronized this great event. . . . .

For the benefit of those who wonder why our sales are always so large, I want to explain that we have a storewide sale only twice a year. . . . . This sale just completed was our first storewide sale since February in the early part of this year and we do not run another storewide sale until next February or March. . . . . Furthermore, we don't run one of our sales for weeks at a time like these other so-called sales, but we hold it for only 2 or 2½ weeks at a time as we could not afford to run it any longer at the prices that we sell at during a sale. . . . .

Of course during the year at various times we have specials on various items, but as far as a general storewide sale is concerned, this is held but twice a year. . . . . It is not our policy to run a big storewide sale and then 2 or 3 weeks later run another big sale. . . . .

Again thanking you for the wonderful manner in which you received my Season's End Sale and making it such a great success, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—The stock market, having experienced an almost perpendicular advance since the drastic break of August 5, showed signs of tiring today under the steadily expanding stream of profit-taking and short selling. Pools succeeded in whirling up about a dozen high-priced industrials and specialties, including United States Steel common, Union Carbide, Westinghouse Electric and Bethlehem Steel, to new high records, but other recent favorites last ground.

Despite the fact that the bulk of professional speculative activity was in the high-priced issues, beyond the reach of many small traders, the volume of business was relatively large.

Weekly iron trade reviews continued optimistic. Iron Age reported "a tapering demand for steel is yet to be reflected definitely in mill operations, which are still at near capacity rate in most districts." It points out that shipments are cutting heavily into backlogs in some lines. Real Silk Hosiery resumed dividends on the common stock after a lapse of two years, and there were a number of favorable earnings reports.

Call money was plentiful and the rate dropped from 7 to 6 per cent, the lowest since August 14. This had a bullish effect on sentiment. There was not change in other monetary accommodations.

Eastman Kodak ran up 11 points to 216, Union Carbide 8 to 132, Commercial Solvents 7 to 504, Commercial Investment Trust 6 to 203, Westinghouse Electric 5 to 259⅞, Bethlehem Steel 5 to 132½, United Aircraft 5 to 141, and United States Steel Common 4¾ to 252½, all new high records.

Sharp gains also were recorded by Allied Chemical, Johns Manville, Brooklyn Union Gas and Gillette Safety Razor.

Peoples Gas broke 16 points, and Allis Chalmers, Case Threshing Machine, International Telephone, American Power and Light and American Power sold 3 to 6 points below yesterday's final quotations.

Several large blocks changed hands during the day. One block of 26,500 shares of Packard (new) changed hands at 31¼, off ¼ from last night's close. A block of 11,000 shares of Pennsylvania Railroad Common changed hands at 100 and a block of 10,000 shares of General Motors at 72.

BUBBLES

Same as of old—young love.

Finding may be keeping but don't keep on finding fault.

The fireman shouldn't be put out if told to keep cool between two fires.

The middleman says he is terribly busy when his work works both ways.

Is it a plant when the jeweler raises the price on a necklace of seed pearls?

"Shoot, if you must, this old gray head, for dry agents need gun practice," she said.

A hick town is a place where the grocer can't collect because everybody calls him Bill.

Mexico should feel natural under President Gil. His name is pronounced "heel."

What becomes of furniture that is too old even for poor folks and not yet old enough for rich folks?

The people whose past lives are exposed in complete detail are candidates and residents of hick towns.

Another thing the ultimate consumer pays without realizing it is the stiff tax placed on the big fellows to please him.

Correct this sentence: "I believe him," said the hard-boiled politician, "when he says he doesn't want the votes of the intolerant."—Detroit Free Press.

STRAY THOUGHTS

Some voices are velvet; others, burlap.

The modern need is for less food and more appetite.

The dislike of some people is a mighty compliment.

If you cannot keep up, how do you expect to catch up?

Being a one-idea man is all right, if the idea is big enough.

The dumbest moment in life is the one before the train starts.

Many emergencies have to be overcome by meeting them before they arrive.

Some of the finest people in the world do not know how to wear clothes.

Many a man is afraid to go after what he wants because he feels that the world belongs to the fellows higher up.

To have an objective in everyday existence is as necessary as is a goal to urge onward the runner who enters a race.

EVERYWHERE

By religion, the Tamil Indian will not eat flesh.

Elephants in captivity seldom live beyond seventy-five years.

The Panama canal is now operating at 70 per cent of its capacity.

It is estimated the proposed Nicaraugan canal would cost $160,000,000.

A snake would starve to death rather than eat anything but living prey.

The United States consumes more than 70 per cent of the world's rubber production.

A man's chest circumference should be 10 per cent greater than that of his belt line.

The Greek language, except for the alphabet, has very nearly passed out of American colleges.

Elephants are keen neither of sight, of scent, nor of hearing in comparison with other jungle inhabitants.

It is estimated that rubber from the Guayule shrub, now growing wild over thousands of acres in Texas, would cost 50 cents a pound.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

That load becomes light which is cheerfully borne.

Clothes don't make the man. A high hat always seems to accentuate a low brow.

We all like to be amused, which is probably why all the world loves a lover.

On closer acquaintance you will find that some women wear well, others wear off.

Keep your faults to yourself and you will find that they are soon forgotten.

You never can tell. Even when two hearts beat as one they often make a discord.

Newlywed—"Congratulate me. I have the dearest little wife in the world." Cynic—"Congratulate me. I have the cheapest."

Alexander Home for Season.

St. Louis, Aug. 21 (AP)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran St. Louis Cardinal hurler, who recently broke training, was sent to his home at St. Paul, Neb., today for the remainder of the season at full pay. He was not suspended.

The Big Event At Crosspatch

Crosspatch, Aug. 21.—The annual costume party will be held at Crosspatch Community Center on Saturday evening, August 31.

Everybody who wishes to can go in costume and compete for one of the prizes; but if you prefer your ordinary dress, you will be just as welcome—not only to look on but to dance and take part in all the gayety.

The costume party winds up the summer season at Crosspatch. Mrs. Evelyn Cross, the founder and manager, will return to New York just after Labor Day and Crosspatch will be quiet until the Christmas party.

It seems as though everybody just loves to go in costume to a party. At Crosspatch, the humorous costumes are liked. In fact the first prize last year went to a lady who impersonated the buxom "Aunt Jemima" of pancake fame, in a delightful way.

Costumes of a local character stand a very good chance of getting a prize. Rip Van Winkle failed to appear at the last party, but it is hoped that he will register this year. No one thought to appear as a lumberman, or a "Buckwheater" and there was only one real old-fashioned mountain couple, though there were any number of clowns and pirates—and very handsome and colorful they were. They will be welcome again, only it is hoped that the really quaint and interesting characters of mountain life will not be forgotten.

Those in costume may wear masks or not, just as they choose. Of course there is lots of fun in guessing hidden identities, but masks are rather hot and steamy. So if you have an original costume idea and go unmasked your chances are just as good for the prize. Several people last year used grease paint and regular make-up and produced a fine effect.

Children may come in costume, too, and compete for prizes. Last year a little seven-year-old girl was adjudged second prize. She was in pajamas, held a lighted candle and on her chest had a card with the "Jack Be Nimble" nursery rhyme spelled out.

No admission is charged to the Crosspatch parties, so it's the custom to bring the whole family, from grandpa to the babe in arms. That's why the children are always included in the fun-making.

This year there will be four prizes given, so every good or original costume has a chance. Mrs. Cross appoints a committee of three judges to award the prizes.

There will be a lovely French doll in a gorgeous costume which will go to some lucky person.

Otherwise there will be dancing on a very good floor and much merriment as always at Crosspatch parties. August 31 being the Saturday before Labor Day, the summer guests of the neighborhood will have a chance for a good time which will be one of their pleasant memories when they wend their way cityward.

Last Saturday evening, August 17, there was a dancing party at Crosspatch. About 150 persons were present and three sets on the floor for the square dances were necessary all evening, for the city guests are as enthusiastic as anybody.

The party was late getting started because some city man tried to get his car up the hill without gas. So a long string of cars were stalled on the narrow road until "first aid" could be secured for the unlucky one who caused the blockade. Then the whole crowd came tearing up like so many huge fire flies.

Crosspatch road is a regular dirt road for a half mile from Willow, where the state road ends. It cannot be denied that the road winds steadily upward, but the hill is so long that it is deceptive to a stranger. The road is in good condition, but rather narrow, so most of the wise ones would rather wait a few minutes than try to pass a car ahead.

The musicians were among those delayed, so things started with great whoopee when everybody arrived at once.

Mrs. Ethel Gleason of New York, who is a guest at Crosspatch, looked after the decorations. A mass of golden rod hid the stove at the far end of the hall. Chinese lanterns swayed from the hand-hewn ceiling beams and the fireplace glowed cosily and the white cat of Crosspatch dozed contentedly on the broad mantel, flanked by lighted candles and big bunches of marigolds and nasturtiums. It was one of those "heatless" fireplaces for summer use (a lighted lantern behind streamers of red paper). The cat is life-size, but of white china. He is a sort of Crosspatch mascot and usually poses in great dignity on a rose-red cushion near the living room fireplace, but when a party is given the children always clamor to have him on the mantelpiece above the fireplace in the community hall.

Finding Felix is a standard diversion between dances, Mrs. Cross tried to vary it a bit this time, but without success. She had to go back to the regular plan of not telling what Felix is—only he or it will have the word "Felix" plainly on it.

This time Felix was a dissolute, rakish-looking black china cat which is used as an incense burner on the porch. In a very short time one of the Slavin granddaughters discovered it and received the dollar prize.

So there was much dancing and gallons of Crosspatch punch were consumed by the thirsty. Mrs. Ethel Gleason and James Van Wagenen served the punch. The last square dance was by candle light, the electric lights being turned off and the candles throwing quaint shadows over the raftered walls and roof that have witnessed so many merrymakings.

A stranger remarked on the number of people who staid out on the cool porch chatting and paying no attention to the dancing going on inside the hall. One of the old timers explained that Crosspatch is a great place for neighborly chats and reunions.

"Some of those people probably haven't seen each other since the last Crosspatch party," he said; "people come to these parties expecting to meet old neighbors and friends, who may live some distance away and whom they seldom see except at Crosspatch."

So a pleasant time was had and the crowd are looking forward to a very gay time at the costume party on Saturday evening, August 21.

U. S. TO REGULATE TESTING OF CEMENT

Washington, (AP)—A reference laboratory has been established to systematize testing of Portland cement and is hailed by the bureau of standards as one of the most important developments of recent years.

It was conceived as a central organization, or master model of the land, to bring a system of orderliness and uniformity throughout the country in methods of cement testing.

Tests carried on by various laboratories to insure that a given sample of cement would measure up to the demands of the structure for which it was to be used, have been so varied that results were unreliable.

A sample of cement, tested for use in bridge building by one laboratory with its method, would be given the stamp of approval; the same sample in another laboratory might be branded thoroughly useless.

The project to remove such a chaotic condition is a joint undertaking of the federal government and the American Society for Testing Materials.

A staff of five experts, under immediate supervision of P. H. Bates, chief of the clay and silicate division, will be prepared to give instruction on the established methods of testing, the proper maintenance of testing equipment, and will also calibrate equipment submitted to it.

LOS ANGELES TO NEW YORK IN PLANE BY DAYLIGHT

Glendale, Cal., Aug. 21 (AP).—Captain Roscoe Turner, with three passengers, took off for New York at 12:45 a. m. today, in attempt to demonstrate the feasibility of a daylight transcontinental airplane passenger service. He planned to stop three times for refueling.

Turner's ship is a cabin monoplane by a 425 horsepower motor. It developed 190 miles per hour in tests.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE GETS MORE INTRICATE

Chicago, Aug. 21 (AP).—English as she is spoken becomes daily more intricate.

A policeman today was explaining one of the stunts on the program for the police field meet at Soldier Field next Saturday. This is what he said:

"A cannon fades a mark and takes it on the lam with the boodle. He is tailed by the bulls, duncecapped, given the weeps by a Niagara pineapple, and hooked for the rap."

Translated for the benefit of the kiddies:

"A gunman holds up a citizen and runs away with the man's money. He is trailed by police, cornered, driven from his refuge by tear bombs and captured for punishment."

ZEPPELIN MAY CARRY LIQUOR SEALED IN BOND

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Such part of the liquor placed in the Graf Zeppelin's wine cellar today in Toyko as not poured down the passenger's throats on the way to Los Angeles will not have to be dumped overboard.

The same customs and revenue rules apply to the dirigible as to any other ship. The Graf established a precedent about treatment of its liquor stores on its last flight from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst, N. J.

On that flight champagne and spirits were carried and such bottles as were not previously emptied into glasses were sealed in bond when the ship passed over American territorial waters.

FISHING FOR CHICKENS IN NEW JERSEY

Harrison, N. J., Aug. 21 (AP).—Chicken thieves are using hook and line in this town.

Henry Solkowicz had been losing chickens from day to day. Yesterday he saw one of the hens swallow a fish hook attached to a line coming over the back fence. The hook was baited with worms.

On the other side of the fence were two small boys, with fishing rods, cans of bait and sacks filled with chickens. The boys escaped.

ON REARING CHILDREN from CRIB TO COLLEGE

Compiled by the Editors of "CHILDREN, THE PARENTS' MAGAZINE"

What will you say when your child asks "How do you know there is a God?" Walter F. Ripperger says he thinks it only fair to explain to his child that people have thought differently about God at different times, and that there are many varied ideas about Him now. "My child should know," says Mr. Ripperger, "that the idea of a living God is one for which men have died, and that there are men who have given their lives for freedom of thought. I shall do this because I believe that my child has a right to know that there are ideas other than mine, and also because I want him, whatever he may believe, to realize the tremendous importance of religious ideas in human history."

Likes there a child who does not adore jumping up and down on the beds to get the "spring" of it? A gee-joggle in the yard or on the porch gives the children more sunshine and exercise—and incidentally saves the bed springs. This version of the popular teeterboard is made of two end supports two feet high with three cross rounds through which a dressed plank works. The plank can be placed on the lower rounds for small children. The plank is 23 feet long, 1½ inches thick and 12 inches wide. The gee-joggle is strong enough to support a parent, should he or she wish to indulge.

Training the baby in good habits of eating, sleeping and elimination cannot begin too early. The cup and spoon can be used almost as early as mother wishes to make the effort—an adjustable toilet seat as soon as the child can sit up and a vessel held in mother's lap before this. Habits of what to expect in the line of attention from parents, and of what is expected in return by parents in the way of good behavior, start with the first glimmerings of consciousness.

Children respond happily to the knowledge that they are being trusted. Instead of sending your child off to school or store with countless warnings about dangerous crossings, say proudly, "I can let you go alone because I know I can trust you to be careful about crossing the street." Instead of telling the children what will happen to them if they quarrel, say, "I am going upstairs now, knowing I can trust you to have fun together."

If you have wasted many hours running about the neighborhood trying to locate your three-year-old and his tricycle try this scheme: Pretend his tricycle is a train and that your house is a railroad station where tickets are sold to every point in the neighborhood. When the little boy wants a ticket for an undesirable point say "I am sorry but I haven't any ticket for that place." He will laugh and think of another. He won't mind your not having tickets for some of the places if he is pleased with your acting in your role of station agent. Thus you can keep better track of his whereabouts and control his visits about the neighborhood.

We are aware that in urging the necessity of educating girls from six to sixteen in the art of dress, we are likely to run up against criticisms from many sensible women who feel that at that age such things as clothes should be unimportant. If, however, one thinks it over one has to admit that such an attitude is either unsympathetic or downright dishonest. There is no time in a woman's life when she does not like clothes, but the love of "dressing up," of color, fabric and decoration is most keen when the senses are most alive, namely in childhood.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

COSTUME JEWELRY FROM PRIMITIVE TO CONTEMPORARY TIME VOGUE

New York—The liveliest interest is being shown in the recent costume jewelry imports to arrive in this country. Reports of the fall showings in Paris invariably include some comment on the jewels worn. There seems to be a great diversity of opinion but the haute couture are united in sponsoring jewelry, and appearing to rely on it to contribute to the effect of the costume.

There is a staunch allegiance to clear crystal used alone or with either black or color. Coral is effectively used with the fashionable violet and purple tones, with brown, with yellow and either black or white, Norman Hartnell appears to have scored with quaint necklaces, earrings and bracelets of colored glass in flower motifs, garnets being particularly approved.

Chokers are heavier than ever and longer. The preference is for longer than actual choker necklaces and these are frequently matched to bracelets or to earrings. Talbot, an exponent of crystals makes effective use of miniature Egyptian effigies. This is in accord with the prevailing idea that any jewelry, whether ultra-modern or primitive is permissible of it contributes anything to the costume and incidentally to the charm of the wearer.

Baguettes and rondelles are favored forms no matters what the media. The trend appears to be for a combination of either stones or metal with stone, or metal with wood, rather than for a monotone effect.

Brooches are worn toward the shoulder.

This prize-winning housewife has hands young and lovely as a millionaire's wife

"I wouldn't trust baby things to anything but Lux," Mrs. Spaulding said. "My doctor says Lux is pure and gentle—there's no danger of irritating baby's tender skin, as there is if his little garments are washed with ordinary soaps. And with Lux my hands stay soft and smooth, no matter how much washing there is to do."

Mrs. Chester Spaulding does all her own work in prize-winning home... keeps her hands lovely by using Lux for every soap and water task

Interview: TIME, 10:30 A.M.—PLACE, 660 32nd Street, Des Moines, Iowa—PERSON, Mrs. Chester Spaulding, winner of national good housekeeping prize . . .

"Your home is perfectly lovely, Mrs. Spaulding—do you really do all your own work? Because, truly, your hands look as if you were a millionaire's wife, with ever so many maids . . ."

"But I haven't even one maid! And my hands peel potatoes and wash dishes and scrub floors, not to mention doing all the laundry except the heavy work. If they look nice and well cared for, it's because I use Lux every time my hands touch soap and water.

"You know, Lux is simply wonderful for the hands . . . I used to use ordinary soaps for housework, just using Lux for fine things. Then I thought—if silks and woolens need Lux care, my hands certainly do!

"Now I use Lux for everything, from bathtubs to lamp shades. I find it saves me work, because Lux gives such quick, rich suds. Lux is real economy, too, because it keeps things new looking so much longer. And what a difference it makes in my hands—no more chapping or reddening, my hands look as nice now as the day I was married."

"'Pretty mother,' my Bobbie says when I wear bright, gay colors—and the children love colored clothes, too. It isn't extravagant because I always wash all colored things (including household linens and curtains) in Lux. I never have trouble with colors fading—Lux keeps them just like new."

"I don't mind washing dishes—with Lux! . . . The Lux suds look so sparkling and pretty in the dishpan—not a bit like the gray dish water you get with cake soap. And it's really almost like a manicure for the hands—leaves them looking lovely. Best of all, it costs so little—a teaspoon does one meal's dishes."

Hands that play the piano—Can they clean and scrub, too? Mrs. Spaulding says yes! "I often play for our club and at church," she adds. "I couldn't do it with rough, kitchen hands. Lux keeps my hands looking like those of a lady of leisure . . . and protects fine surfaces, too, like ivory keys, woodwork, porcelain, etc."

Wisest Beauty Care for your hands—LUX for every soap and water task!

In an unsettled state of affairs the world over it would require an expert in social relativity to define the precise boundaries of the "underworld."

We have had it confirmed by suitable inquires that the name of the new revolutionary figure in China is really Hip Hip Hong, instead of Hurray.

"A new paper for wrapping purposes is made waterproof in the process of manufacture." Something after the idea of the paper towel, we expect.

"The only difference between graphite and a diamond is in the way the molecules are arranged." Splendid! Let's break a lead pencil and start arranging.

The opportunity for a demonstration has passed, of course, but we often wonder how the late Mr. Houdini was on extricating the arm from a torn sleeve-lining.

These bridge games which are broadcast might be given a further convincing touch if one leg of the radio cabinet could be arranged to collapse occasionally.

Artists have secured results that may imply the influence of a "fourth dimension." Some of the products are as difficult to reduce to ordinary terms of ratiocination as Einstein's theory itself.

Vegetable Crops Generally Good

There is a good acreage and for the most part the vegetable crops of the state are making good progress according to a state-federal report just issued from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

The cabbage of the state is divided mostly into two types—early, domestic or flat and Danish or late. The first of the domestic to be harvested is usually shipped to market if the market is good enough. Later, the bulk of it is cut into kraut. The Danish cabbage, on the other hand, does not mature until later and is partly shipped direct to market and partly stored to be sold later as fast as the market will take it. Sometimes, of course, a portion of the Danish crop is used for kraut if the price is very low or if the production of domestic cabbage has been very light.

Last year the yield per acre of both domestic and Danish cabbage was light and the price was consequently higher than the year previous and as is usually the case after a year of good prices for an agricultural commodity the acreage is increased. The acreage of domestic cabbage is now estimated at about 10,120 acres compared with 8,960 acres last year and 9,950 acres two years ago. Wisconsin, which is New York's largest competitor in the production of domestic cabbage, has increased its acreage from 6,340 acres last year to 7,290 acres this year. For all of the northern states producing domestic cabbage the acreage has been increased from about 26,250 acres to about 29,390 acres this year or an increase of 12 per cent.

The condition of domestic cabbage is also better than last year at this time, indicating a production for the state of about 108,300 tons compared with 69,000 tons last year and 157,800 tons for 1927. Production for the entire group of northern states producing domestic cabbage indicates a production of about 306,200 tons compared with 237,600 tons last year.

When we consider the Danish or late cabbage we find that the state acreage has been slightly increased from about 19,170 acres last year to about 20,130 acres this year and although early to forecast production, the condition is higher than it was at this time last year. The prolonged dry weather injured the crop some, especially in western New York, where some fields were set late and where the plants are below normal in size in many instances. In Wisconsin, the acreage of Danish has been increased from about 6,750 last year to about 8,640 this year but here again dry weather has been injuring the crop.

The onion acreage for the state was increased nearly 2,000 acres over that harvested last year or from about 5,830 to 7,810 acres but this does not mean such a large increase in planted onions since last year there was a very large acreage of onions abandoned and never harvested on account of the summer floods. The onion acreage of the state was considerably larger in 1927 and 1925. The acreage of onions has been increased in California from 5,680 to 6,700 acres; in Michigan from 4,520 acres to about 5,000 acres; in Ohio from 6,550 to 8,640 acres; and in Colorado from 3,760 acres to 6,700 acres. The acres planted to onions in the entire group of late states is placed at 56,480 acres compared with 47,720 acres last year.

The forecast of production for New York is now placed at 3,124,000 bushels compared with 1,283,000 bushels last year. In Ohio the forecast is for about 2,532,000 bushels compared with 891,000 last year. Colorado promises about 2,211,000 bushels compared with about 1,241,000 bushels. The entire group of late onion producing states promises about 18,563,000 bushels compared with 13,033,000 last year.

Carrot acreage for New York has just slightly increased from that harvested last year, 2,200 acres compared with 2,120 acres. The total acreage from the states from which comparable data has been obtained indicates an increase of about 11 per cent over the 1928 acreage.

Celery acreage in New York has been increased from about 4,600 acres last year to about 5,100 acres this year although many fields were set late on account of the dryness of the muck and were below normal in size on August 1. Michigan's acreage is placed at 4,230 acres compared with 3,990 last year. The total acreage of late celery is placed at 12,790 acres compared with 12,000 acres last year.

Cauliflower acreage in New York outside of Long Island amounts to about 2,340 acres compared with 1,920 acres last year. Not all of this, however, may make heads since it was very dry when a portion of it was set. Colorado's acreage is placed at 3,600 acres against 1,700 acres last year. These figures raise the acreage of late cauliflower outside of Long Island from 4,090 acres last year to about 6,340 acres this year.

Who Wants to Buy An Old Cruiser?

Washington, Aug. 21 (AP).—Nine obsolete navy cruisers soon are to be placed on the auction block.

Earlier in the year the Navy Department authorized the sale of the old cruisers Salem, Albany and New Orleans, ships which during the early part of the twentieth century were the pride of the American fleet. The York, laid up at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, is the youngest. She was commissioned in 1908 as the Chester. The others to be sold are the Birmingham, St Louis, Chattanooga, Des Moines, and Charleston.

The Navy also has out of commission the old cruisers Charlotte, Frederick, Huntington, Huron, Missoula and Pueblo, as well as the Olympia, which is considered a relic because she was Admiral Dewey's flag ship in the Spanish-American war, and is expected to be preserved because of her historical interest.

Because of the lack of modern cruisers, the Navy has been using the old Denver, Galveston, Rochester Pittsburgh and Seattle, all more than 20 years old.

Saugerties Property Sold.

Long Speakership Terms

Henry Clay was speaker of the house of representatives longer than any other man. He was elected six different times, although he did not serve out six full terms or congresses. He resigned the speakership twice. Joseph G. Cannon and Champ Clark each served as speaker of the house eight years.

Use Poetry to Tame Wife-Beating Husband

Grand Rapids, Mich.—If your husband beats you, try poetry. The plan has worked in at least one instance, according to Miss Alice Yeakman, chief of the family service bureau, whose job is to untangle family difficulties.

In this case the worker assigned to the case discovered that the husband often cut poems from papers and magazines. She suggested that he try writing poems to his wife. Pleased with the idea, he tried it and now, says Miss Yeakman, he is falling romantically in love with his wife again.

Patent Applications Swamp Federal Office

New York.—Patent applications totaling 100,000 are awaiting action in the United States patent office, while the capacity of the office does not exceed the issue of 45,000 patents annually, Ford W. Harris, Los Angeles attorney, declares in a symposium in "Industrial and Engineering Chemistry," published by the American Chemical society.

"It is obvious that the patent office is in very bad condition and that it is constantly getting worse," says Mr. Harris. "On January 1, 1920, the office had awaiting action by examiners about 80,000 applications. This was admitted by all concerned to be an excessive amount in view of the fact that only about 40,000 applications were issued per year.

"By 1923 the number of pending applications had doubled. On January 1, 1926, the number had been reduced to about 45,000, but during the past three years it has again increased to an approximate total of 100,000.

"The number of patents issued has, except for the year 1925, hung in the narrow zone between 35,000 and 45,000 patents a year. Making reasonable allowances for variations, we can reasonably say that the patent office has increased its output from 40,000 to 45,000 patents, or about 12.5 per cent in 20 years.

"During this time the number of cases filed has increased at least 50 per cent, probably much more than this."

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

New York—One fellow with a mighty wallop likes to see another in action. When Cyril Tolley and three other British golfers arrived on the way to Pebble Beach, it was at first proposed that they see the Women's National Tennis Tourney. They decided that Babe Ruth would be a better show. The Yanks being away, Rogers Hornsby was offered as a substitute. "He'll do," said the Britishers. And they watched the Cubs play the Giants.

New York—Mrs. Billy Seeman, the former Phyllis Haver of the screen, is trying out an idea for happily married persons who have differences of opinion about entertaining folks. She has sound-proof rooms on the sixteenth floor beneath their penthouse apartment and she retires to them when her husband's visitors make too much noise.

Paris, Tenn.—Having performed 1,565 rush marriages in fifteen years, W. P. Erwin, 86, marrying squire, has retired. New regulations requiring a delay between license and ceremony, he says, render it difficult for a squire to make a living.

New York—In the opinion of Ralph Barton, caricaturist, New York is a crazy city and America is a madhouse. But that is why he has come back after living four years in France. "It is better to be a crazy New Yorker than a triumph of the boulevards."

Daytona Beach, Fla.—Pajamas are to be worn by both sexes at a dance under the auspices of the City Recreation Department on the boardwalk next Monday night. No other attire will be permitted.

Cuba, N. Y.—Mrs. T. Paul Wilcox of Cheyenne, Wyo., who has been visiting, is convinced that some residents of New York city need to know more about their state. Cashing a check here she received some of the bright new notes of the Cuba National Bank. In New York city she tendered a $5 note to the conductor of a Fifth avenue bus. He told her it was against the rules to accept foreign money.

London—"The Apple Cart", a new play by George Bernard Shaw, depicts an American ambassador, visiting a British cabinet meeting with the information that the United States has torn up the Declaration of Independence and is ready to join the British Empire if the King takes the title of Emperor. It is in the heyday of socialism. But the King threatens to run for Parliament and form a government and so everything goes on as before.

New York—The total of life insurance in the United States has passed the one hundred billion dollar mark, a goal sought for years, it is announced by the Association of Life Insurance Presidents. There are 65,000,000 policyholders.

At The Upper Room Mission.

The regular mid-week service will be held at the Upper Room Mission, 562 Broadway, top floor, near the West Shore, Friday evening at 8 o'clock. At this meeting James Wesley, a converted vaudeville actor, will tell the circumstances of his conversion and relate some of the personal experiences of his life while on the stage. Mr. Wesley has a very pleasing personality and is a gifted speaker. His message will be very interesting and helpful and unique. Everyone welcome.

Number of Shares Increased.

A certificate of increase in the number of shares of common stock of the Ulster County Ice and Coal Corporation has been filed with the county clerk. Under the certificate filed the number of common stock shares has been increased from 1250 to 1550 with no par value while the preferred stock has been increased from 1,000 shares of a par value of $100 to 1,000 shares of class "A" series and 500 shares of class "B" preferred stock having a par value of $100.

News from the World on Wheels

If you are in a hurry it costs you money, especially if you drive a light car. Maybe you have found this out by experience; maybe not. Anyway Auburn experimental engineers have proved it after many exhaustive tests. Seven cars of various makes were used in these tests for light cars; five were used in the heavy car tests, and in all of them it was found that the speed which gave the most economical results was around 25 miles an hour. An Auburn 6-80 driven at the rate of 15 miles an hour made 26 miles to the gallon of gasoline. At 45 miles an hour it made 20.6 miles. However, at 35 miles an hour the mileage climbed to 27 miles per gallon and at 25 miles an hour it rose to 29.6. Six other makes of cars, according to W. B. Barnes, experimental engineer, all under the thousand dollar class, ranged in gas mileage in these speeds from 29.4 to 18.6 miles per gallon. One of these cars was a four-cylinder car and the others light sixes.

During the past twelve months the De Soto Six has broken all existing sales records for any first-year car in the entire history of the automobile industry. Riding on the crest of a wave of popularity that began when it was first introduced, De Soto completed its first year with sales of more than 80,000 cars—a new world's record for a first-year car.

OFFICIAL DESIGNATION PETITION FILED

Tuesday was the last day to file designating petitions for the fall primary election of September 17 and both Republican and Democratic parties filed their petitions with Mark Sampson, clerk of the local board of elections. The petitions filed require the necessary signatures. In the eleventh ward the Democratic party had designated Jacob A. Myers as candidate for alderman of that Ward, the selection having been left to the committee. There are two vacancies in the city, the Republican party having no designation for alderman in the thirteenth ward and the Democratic party has no designation for alderman in the second ward. In all other cases the candidates are the same as published following the conventions of the two parties.
